Lowell on Fielding. St. James' Budget. [illegible] must excel out among the [illegible] in the American minister's [illegible] at the Taunton [illegible] the emphasis with which he [illegible] qualities of Fielding's personal [illegible] dearth of knowledge [illegible] story and the prevalence of [illegible] then cross examined, as Mr. Lowell [illegible] is forced to confess [illegible] no visible means of subsistence [illegible] Fielding has been formed [illegible] him than the conventional [illegible] picture of Harry Fielding [illegible] with a wet towel around his head [illegible] generally recurs to the mind [illegible] when we think of the [illegible] Tom Jones." To many [illegible] doubtless be rather a surprise [illegible] described as "a lovingly [illegible] a tender father, a good brother, a [illegible] sagacious magistrate." [illegible] son's careful little volume [illegible] is good and sufficient warrant [illegible] words. The external evidence [illegible] is of it) all goes to confirm the [illegible] mony of his four immortal novels [illegible] author found life a serious business [illegible] very much in earnest. His work [illegible] as Southey, and was as [illegible] questions as Dickens. But [illegible] a humorist, and the [illegible] himself from the accidents of [illegible] His soul "is forced to laugh [illegible] cry," as Mr. Lowell said, [illegible] there is no doubt that [illegible] altogether right. Fielding [illegible] manly writer—not, perhaps, [illegible] giibus pueroque, but [illegible] man may to other men. [illegible] quality the resuscitation of [illegible] the Taunton celebration is a [illegible] powerful tonic to the whole [illegible] nature of our day. The friend [illegible] "Joseph Andrews" satirized [illegible] (albeit the two greatest [illegible] century owed very much [illegible] more abiding power [illegible] England, and still more in [illegible] Richardson, it would seem, [illegible] potent influence than Fielding [illegible] Sterne. Decision in the Archbishop Purcell Suit.

[illegible], Oct. 1.—The Hamilton county district court, composed of Judges John Smith and Moore, [illegible] decided the case of J. B. Mannix, assignee of J. B. Purcell, et al., which was an action brought to obtain the judgment of the court as to the liability of church property to pay the debts contracted by the late Bishop Purcell. [illegible] The case is one of great magnitude, and occupied three months, having been under consideration since June, 1883. The opinion delivered by Judge [illegible] this morning at 2 o'clock, occupied nearly three hours. Out of nearly 200 pieces of property held by the archbishop, fourteen were selected for this trial, being representatives of all. Nine of these [illegible] churches; the others were the cathedral, the archbishop's residence, and the [illegible] seminary, Cummingsville orphan asylum and [illegible] cemetery. The old and the new converts [illegible] that in cases of churches, though title was in Archbishop Purcell, yet they were built from money raised by members of different [illegible], and that the title was in the [illegible] by reason of the rules of the [illegible]. In each case, this court [illegible] that the archbishop held title [illegible] for the use of the congregation, and [illegible] property so held could not be subjected to [illegible] of the archbishop. In the case of [illegible] the majority of the court found that the [illegible] showed the archbishop has advanced some [illegible] and that the church was liable for that [illegible] to the assignee.

The Millionaire Sherwin was Arrested.

[illegible], Oct. 1.—The arrest in Chicago Saturday of John R. Sherwin of New Mexico created considerable talk in this city. Sherwin is well known in [illegible]. He is one of the millionaires of the west, and is the head of the largest stock raising company on the continent. The circumstances which led to the arrest are understood here as follows: In 1876 [illegible] the republican [illegible] in the interest of Hayes, and [illegible] to doubt the republican victory in [illegible] was largely due to Sherwin's efforts. He [illegible] appointed pool commissioner [illegible] in that state, one of which was [illegible] bankruptcy. Sherwin associated himself with a syndicate of New York [illegible], purchased mortgage bonds, foreclosed [illegible]. After a lapse of several [illegible] the original holders of the bonds made the [illegible] that, included in the original franchise of [illegible] a large tract which was known as the [illegible] Indian lands, which Sherwin's party subsequently sold, together with the road, and realized [illegible]. It appears that the original owners [illegible] have repeatedly sought to recover, with [illegible] the value of these lands. Upon what [illegible] does not appear. Sherwin's recent sale [illegible] interest in the Maxwell land grant in southern Colorado and northern New Mexico, for three-quarters of a million, has possibly furnished an incentive for the present proceedings against him. Sherwin recently married a daughter of ex-Governor [illegible] of this city.

Result of Dr. Salmon's Investigation.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 1.—During the past summer Dr. Salmon, of the agricultural department, has been making a series of experiments, intended to ascertain the causes and means of prevention of hog cholera and pleuro-pneumonia among cattle. At a [illegible] near this city about thirty young cows were experimented with. Thirteen were inoculated to [illegible] with lung disease, which prevails about [illegible] was contagious, but no result tending to establish that conclusion followed inoculation. Other experiments were made to discover a system of inoculation to protect hogs and chickens from cholera. The greatest obstacle to success was a lack of stability in the virus and its liability to deteriorate [illegible] must be cultivated so as to keep a uniform strength, and as the best means of doing this is yet unknown, it must be ascertained by other and further experiments. Better results have followed the investigation into the character of virus in chicken cholera, and Doctor Salmon has expressed an opinion that means of protecting chickens from that disease will soon be known.

Indian Troubles Threatened.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 30.—Devil's Lake special: At St. John, the Turtle mountain settlement, the threatened troubles between Little Shell, of the Chippewa Indians, and government surveyors, recently sent to survey the boundaries of restricted reservations, assume a serious aspect. Settlers have requested Commandant Conrad to send troops from Totten for protection. An official telegram from Washington authorizes Cyrus Fessenger, surveyor general of Dakota, to investigate and adjust the difficulty. "Little Shell" promises not to interfere with the surveyors, but is, however, reinforcing the band by [illegible] Cree Indians from the Woody mountains. He is married into the Cree nation, and wants them to have land on the reservation and distribution of the part of the congressional appropriation of $10,000, to which none but full blood Chippewas have legal claim.

Municipal Row.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—There is considerable indignation among the republicans over the discovery that Mayor Palmer has refused to appoint persons whom the republican city committee named for the election officers. In most of the democratic wards, particularly in the north end wards, many of them will be retained as deputies; but the mayor has not [illegible] republicans whom the city and ward committees do not know. The Journal, a republican paper, says that these are all probably Butler men, and that this action means the perpetration of fraud in counting votes. In these democratic [illegible] democratic mayors have heretofore appointed persons sent in by the republican committee, and democratic aldermen have approved them. The aldermen yesterday, without counting, confirmed all the mayor's appointments. A motion to hear Parker, the secretary of the city republican committee, was lost. He intended, if permitted, to point out changes made by the mayor in the list presented as compared with that handed to him by representatives of the republican party in Boston.

Clearing House Returns.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—A table compiled from special dispatches to the Post from twenty-seven of the leading clearing houses of the United States gives the clearings for the week ended September 30, and the per cent. of increase or decrease as compared with the corresponding week of 1882. The exhibits [illegible] are very unfavorable when compared with that of the corresponding periods of last week and year, giving the aggregate clearances for the week at $1,014,518,362, against $[illegible],105 last week, and $987,432,962 the previous week. As compared with last year, clearings show a decrease of 29 per cent., against a falling off of 18 per cent. last week. Heavy failures in New York, long continued drought, which has curtailed the production of the mills, and the continued hesitancy of the buyers to enter the market has largely curtailed the amount of legitimate business throughout the country, and has been directly reflected on clearing house returns.

Portland, Maine, Postmaster Interviewed.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—The Post-Democrat has an interview with Judge Charles W. Goddard, postmaster at Portland, Maine, relative to the charges that he has neglected the duties of his office, misappropriated government money, received clemency of the department in making up the defalcation, and violated the rule of the department which provides that no postmaster shall hold a state office. Judge Goddard admits that he is revising the statutes of the state the legislature voted a bill of $5000. As to the other charges he says: "I have never done anything." A dispatch to the Post says the Bangor Commercial (democrat) intimates strongly that an investigation of the management of the Portland postoffice will show a very unsatisfactory condition.

The Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Governments strong. The stock market was firm throughout the day. Before the first call there was an improvement of ¼ per cent. in Northwestern, Northern Pacific, Transcontinental and Western Union leading, followed by a decline. Later on Western Union developed marked strength, mounting up to 80¾ against 79 3 7 yesterday. Dealings in this stock closed at 80⅝ at the stock exchange, but 80⅞ was bid on the street after 3 P. M. This advance created the impression that the decision now pending before the court of appeals, regarding the legality of $15,000,000 stock [illegible], is in favor of the company. As compared with Saturday's closing sales stocks were ¼ to ¾ per cent. higher. Later on Oregon Navigation, after declining to 123, advanced to 125⅜.

The Situation at Pensacola.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 1.—Forty days ago two cases of yellow fever were announced. The men were sent to quarantine, and Surgeon Murray, of the marine hospital service, from a post mortem examination of one and treatment of the other, pronounced the cases malarial fever. This was followed by forty-five days of unprecedented good health. For fifteen days there has been some malarial fever, due to the remarkable drought. Four days ago another case of yellow fever was announced, but there has been no case since. The community is divided about the matter. A large majority refuse to believe the case to be yellow fever. About 150 returned refugees have fled again. There is very little excitement, but business is prostrated and merchants are suffering greatly.

Sitting Bull Backslides.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 26.—The ceremony of receiving Sitting Bull, the great Indian chief, into the Catholic church, which it was anticipated would take place this week at Fort Yates, has been indefinitely postponed, because Sitting Bull cannot make up his mind which of his two wives he will let go. The laws of the church forbid the communicant having more than one. Bishop Marty has had Sitting Bull under his care for several months, and his instructions were being rapidly observed by the chief, but separation from one of his wives proved too much for him, and he will probably return to heathenism.

Will Hold Up the Prices.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—The following agreement will be extensively circulated and largely signed by the dealers of this city: "The recent cut in prices of New York papers is against our interest as business men. The publication of cheap newspapers is [illegible], and it is high time publishers should [illegible] newsdealers as factors necessary to [illegible]. Delay in trains and in the handling just [illegible] in holding former prices. Therefore we agree to sell the former uniform prices on New York dailies, [illegible] an event undersell the same."

Yellow Fever in the South.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 29.—The report of the death of a yellow fever patient in Pensacola is confirmed by a telegram to the board of health, but that body will take no action until to-morrow. The president of the board went to-day authorized to establish quarantine [illegible] accommodation from the board [illegible]

Indians in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Thirty young Sioux Indians from Standing Rock agency, arrived here to-day, and were taken to the Feehanville Catholic training school, where they will be taught manual arts. Among them is a son of Sitting Bull.

A party of seven Indians, including Running Antelope and a son of Spotted Tail, are in the city on their way to Washington in charge of Indian Agent Noel. They will ask the government to give them farms and provide them with agricultural implements. They refuse to sleep in hotels, and camp in a tent in Lincoln park.

N. Y. & N. E. Stocks.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—The cause of the drop in the New York and New England stock and bonds to-day is the failure of the company to earn its interest for the fiscal year, ending to-morrow night. It will be paid, however, and the deficit carried by the company in hopes of future prosperity. There is a rumor that a leading banking house has sold a large amount of New York and New England stock to Vanderbilt.

The Cotton Crop Damaged.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 30.—Special telegrams to the Houston Post to-night, from 130 points in Texas, indicate a total failure, with few exceptions, of the top crop of cotton. Where recent rains have benefited sections of the crop, worms are appearing in large numbers, and in the northern portion of the state early frosts are apprehended. The yield this season, though less discouraging than a month ago will fall considerably short of last year.

JAY EYE SEE AND ST. JULIEN.

The Latter Runs Under the Wire, thus Losing the First Heat.

FLEETWOOD PARK, Sept. 29.—When the drivers entered the office of the clerk of the scales to weigh they met with an enthusiastic reception from the vast throng. St. Julien's driver wears black and the driver of Jay Eye See purple. The latter weighs 57 pounds.

The first heat was started at 3:45 P. M. St. Julien drew the pole. At the third attempt the competitors got the word, with St. Julien half a length ahead. Hickok kept St. Julien under pull. In rounding the turn Jay Eye See was at St. Julien's wheel. After getting fairly under way Jay Eye See began to draw on St. Julien, and the excitement became tremendous. Abreast the quarter pole St. Julien led by a quarter of a length, and the backs of the animals were now as level as a billiard table, and they were moving like pieces of machinery. Approaching the half mile post Jay Eye See drew up even with his antagonist. At about fifty yards from the three-quarter post Jay Eye See broke, but in two strides he immediately settled down to work again and rapidly overhauled St. Julien.

AN EXCITING FINISH.

Excitement now reached fever heat and Bonner had to call on the crowd for silence. On entering the homestretch Jay Eye See was at St. Julien's wheel, and the struggle down the straight was grand, Jay Eye See gaining at every stride. Fifty yards from the wire St. Julien led by half a length, but was faltering, and broke when about thirty feet from the wire. He passed under the wire on a run, leading by a head. The judges, in consequence of St. Julien's passing over the score running, gave the heat to Jay Eye See. Time, by quarters: first quarter, 33 seconds; half mile, 1:05½; three quarters, 1:42¾; mile, 2:20¼. The decision gave general satisfaction.

Betting was now $100 to $70 in favor of St. Julien. After the first heat John Murphy gave Steve Maxwell and mate a mile in 2:24½.

SECOND HEAT.

The horses cooled out nicely. They were rung up at 4:15 P. M. Jay Eye See took the pole on account of winning the preceding heat. At starting St. Julien laid a length ahead, and Bithers immediately took a pull on Jay Eye See and waited until he got straighted out for the quarter post before letting him out. On reaching the quarter post St. Julien led two open lengths, but soon after passing the post Jay Eye See began to close up, and trotted abreast. At the half mile post St. Julien seemed to be in trouble, but was trotting in good form nevertheless. The flyers then made for the hill. St. Julien seemed to take up hill work more kindly, and three furlongs from home the pair were trotting on level terms. Jay Eye See was now forcing his pace, and St. Julien's driver took him in hand preparatory to a hard finish.

JAY EYE SEE WINS.

Coming into the straight Jay Eye See led three parts of a length. The finish was terrific, and it was simply wonderful how the animals could keep their feet, in the yelling and hooting of the immense crowd. Midway down the straight St. Julien made a grand effort, under punishment, to head his antagonist, but Jay Eye See was unapproached and captured the heat by half a length, well in hand. Time: first quarter, 32¾; half mile, 1:05¼; three quarters, 1:40¾; mile, 2:15½.

Steve Maxwell and mate were driven a mile in 2:16½ against time after the heat.

Betting on the next heat between Jay Eye See and St. Julien, was $100 to $60 in favor of the former. The police have stopped pool selling.

TWO GOVERNORS.

Ireland of Texas is Banqueted by Madera of Coahuila.

GALVESTON, Texas, Oct. 1.—A special to the News from Saltillo, Mexico, says: Last night Governor Madera of the state of Coahuila, accompanied by civic and military dignitaries of this capital, met Governor Ireland of Texas at Rinconada station, thirty miles from Saltillo. Governor Ireland is spending a few days in Mexico for recreation, and was given an enthusiastic reception. Some surprise is evinced to see the governor accompanied by only two gentlemen—Hon. George Pfeiffer and Captain Tarvero. When the train pulled into the Saltillo depot it was Ireland's turn to be surprised—finding fully 10,000 people awaiting to welcome him, and shouts of "Viva Texas" from the populace. The party entered conveyances and, preceded by a splendid escort, were taken to the residence, where the governor will remain the guest of the state during his brief stay. To-day he was called upon by Governor Madera and staff and by the leading citizens. Quite a delegation of resident Americans also paid their respects. An official banquet will be spread in the municipal hall this evening. The banquet will be followed by one of the most magnificent balls ever projected in Saltillo. Governor Ireland leads in the first set with Mdme. Madera, wife of the governor of Coahuila.

GOVERNOR MADERA'S COMPLAINT.

The two governors have conversed with each other freely in regard to closer relations between the two states. Both gentlemen manifested a great desire to formulate some acceptable plan by which the practice of recovering stolen property taken from one side of the Rio Grande to the other can be brought up. Governor Madera makes a serious complaint that the citizens of his state had followed stolen property into Texas, but were prevented making recovery, the United States custom authorities having seized it as contraband. He instanced a party who retook a large number of oxen from a thief on the Texas side, near Eagle Pass. In attempting to return with them to Mexico, not only were the cattle seized by the United States custom officers, but the Mexicans were imprisoned for having stock in their possession which had not paid custom dues. Governor Ireland will avail himself of an opportunity to obtain a thorough acquaintance with the Mexican question, and will undertake, on his return, to correct, as far as possible, the abuses which are practiced on the Rio Grande frontier. In this endeavor he will be ably seconded by Governor Madera.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

Same Passenger Rates to San Francisco and Portland.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 1.—As a result of the San Francisco conference of Pacific lines it is announced that, commencing to-day first-class passenger rate from Kansas City or Omaha to San Francisco is reduced to $95, and rates for each class from the Missouri river and Mississippi river to Portland, Oregon, and San Francisco will be the same as from the same points to San Francisco. Eastern lines are requested to prepare immediately for the next change of orders or extension of tickets from San Francisco via the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, and the same must be of the non-transferable iron clad contract form, giving a description of the accompanying railway ticket, and limiting them for exchange at San Francisco to two days beyond the limit allowed up to that point. Tickets for Puget sound points must read via Portland only, and are subject to additional arbitration there. From the existing forms of tickets or exchange, orders may be used if properly stamped, to comply with these requirements. On the other hand, passenger rates from St. Paul to San Francisco, via Portland, will be the same as to Portland, and subject to similar restrictions, the entire through proportion being included in reports to the Northern Pacific railroad and Oregon Railway & Navigation Company. The importance of this action will be apparent to railway officials and Pacific coast travelers.

WILL BUILD A BRIDGE JOINTLY.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 1.—The Davidson county court to-day voted acceptance of a proposition of Messrs. Huntington and others, projectors of a new road from Cincinnati to Nashville, that the county shall levy a tax sufficient to pay half the costs of a bridge across the Cumberland river, to be used jointly by the railroad, and by the county, as a free bridge to this city.

The World Moves.

Chicago Times.

The world moves. A play actor has just been banqueted at Glasgow, and the highest dignitary of that rigid Calvanistic city attended. A bishop of the Church of England has been preaching in a Presbyterian pulpit. The dwellers on the British island are doubtless surprised to observe that, in spite of these portentous events, night succeeds morning and harvest follows seed time just as they used to do.

Rather Clever.

N. Y. World.

Mr. Ames, the representative of Massachusetts culture nominated for lieutenant governor by the republicans, is the richest man in politics in the state, and it is expected that he will chip in $25,000 into the canvass to "beat Butler" and save the honor of the commonwealth. The republican party is a party of high aims.

Ohio Voters Excited in an Off Year.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

There will be an enormous vote cast in Ohio on the second Tuesday of October, and that of itself means republican victory.

Malarial disorders as often attack the people of large cities as of the country. Ayer's Ague Cure is warranted a safe and certain specific.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

As Senator Logan has declined the second place on the republican ticket, the eye of the country is gradually turning to Professor Wiggins.

King Alfonso's Treatment in Paris Creates Deep Indignation.

THE NIHILISTS ISSUE A WARNING CIRCULAR.

Death of a Prince—Movements of the French in China—Yellow Fever in Mexico—Old World Notes.

KING ALFONSO'S INSULT.

He is Satisfied with France's Explanation—The Spanish People Indignant.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—King Alfonso visited Enlaay, returning this afternoon. At an interview with Grevy at the Spanish embassy, President Grevy tendered an apology to the king in the name of the French republic, because of the conduct of a mob of people. He said it should not be confounded with authors of hostile demonstrations. He begged the king to give the French fresh proof of his sympathy by accepting an invitation to a banquet at the Palace Elysee this evening, to be attended by all the cabinet ministers, when a true sentiment of France toward the king would be shown. Alfonso replied that he came to Paris animated by the most friendly sentiments towards France, and, as proof of his friendship, he would accept the invitation. The king went to the Palace Elysee at 9 o'clock in the evening.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says: Alfonso is perfectly satisfied of the good faith of Prime Minister Ferry, as representing the French government. The king does not admit for a moment that the spirit shown on Saturday by the mob, which was excited by a false statement of anarchist agitators, represents the French nation. In abridging his stay in Paris by one half of the time intended the king desires to diminish the difficulties that have arisen from his visit. The Spanish minister of foreign affairs said that the Spanish government entirely agree with the decision of the king to leave Paris. Alfonso was quite unaware of his appointment to the colonelcy of a Uhlan regiment. He received it and his uniform simultaneously. Emperor William intended the appointment as an agreeable surprise. He would not lend himself to anything that would be likely to excite prejudice against one for whom he had taken an exceptional liking. Bismarck has nothing to do with the appointment. Alfonso and the duke of Connaught exchanged visits Sunday. President Grevy went to the depot Saturday to greet King Alfonso reluctantly, but if his manner appeared cold his words were cordial.

THE SPANISH PEOPLE INDIGNANT.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says: The hostile reception accorded Alfonso in Paris has considerably increased his prestige at home. His personal courage and discretion distinguished bearing during his progress through the streets of Paris, and his visit to President Grevy's residence at Elysee, without escort, are subjects of general eulogy and admiration by the Spanish.

MADRID, Oct. 1.—Citizens are highly incensed over the insults offered Alfonso in Paris. Bands of people paraded the streets yesterday evening, insulted Frenchmen and openly threatened the French embassy. Police, however, prevented any violence. Senor Moret, at a meeting of the democratic club, declared the insults offered the king affected the whole Spanish nation, which would stand by the king. His utterances were received with loud cheering. Marshal Terrano telegraphed Senor [illegible] the cause of monarchy demanded his presence in Madrid. Officers of the garrison also held a meeting, at which strong speeches against France were delivered.

THE GOVERNMENT'S ACTION CENSURED.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Alarming reports prevail that the Spanish cabinet will demand that the French government make a public apology for the insult offered Alfonso, and the German government will make a diplomatic remonstrance at the indignities to which the Spanish king were subjected. Radicals violently attack President Grevy and Prime Minister Ferry for the course they have pursued in the matter. The cabinet is divided in opinion as to its policy.

ALFONSO DEPARTS FOR SPAIN.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—King Alfonso and suite left the city on the 8:45 train this morning, on the return to Spain. No demonstration was made by the populace over their departure.

Gen. Pettie, secretary, President Grevy and Duc de Fernannunez, Spanish ambassador to France, escorted the king to the railway station. The king made an excellent impression upon the guests at the banquet at the Elysee. Grevy, referring thereto, said he never expected to meet so much good sense, diplomacy and coolness in so young a sovereign.

THE MOB'S ACTION CONDEMNED.

Journals here continue to condemn the action of the populace toward Alfonso, insisting on it especially that they were playing [illegible] of Bismarck. The Journal Officiel publishes the fact that President Grevy apologized to King Alfonso for the outrage of Saturday. All the French ministers were present at the banquet given by President Grevy in honor of Alfonso at the palace Elysee on Sunday evening, except Thibaudin, minister of war, and Meline, minister of agriculture. President Grevy wore the Spanish order of the Golden Fleece. King Alfonso conversed for half an hour after the banquet with Grevy and Prime Minister Ferry. Grevy urged the king to remain in Paris another day.

MARK LANE REVIEW.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Mark Lane Express, in its review of the British grain trade: "The weather has hampered gathering of the remaining of harvest, and also been unfavorable to threshing of grain. Samples of new English wheat that have arrived are generally in bad condition. Damp samples are unsalable. Dry barley maintained previous rates. Flour is dull. Foreign wheat are very depressed. Supplies are large. Arrivals of flour are heavy. Pacific coast flour does not appear suited for the London market. Maize is gradually cheapening. Mixed American on Friday was quoted at 25s. Cargoes off coast are lifeless. There were twenty-three arrivals and two sales, ten withdrawn and eleven remain on sale. Trade forward is depressed. Sales of English wheat for the week were 72,844 qrs., at 41s per quarter, against 592 qrs. at 40s 44 per qr for the corresponding week in last year.

HEAVY FAILURES.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Proctor & Son, corn millers of Newcastle, have failed. Liabilities £150,000.

MEXICO.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

GUAYMAS, Oct. 1.—The steamer Sonora, lying in quarantine, had one death aboard. Another death is reported. Hermosillo advices show that the fever is still badly raging there but it is difficult to obtain precise details. An Indian scout arrived this morning with the news that fever of some kind has broken out among the Yaquis Indians, and that several had died—how many he did not know. At this point no deaths have occurred in the past few days, and the fever may be said to have subsided. The thermometer stood at 91 deg. this morning, rising to 93 at noon.

RUSSIA.

NIHILISTS ISSUE A CIRCULAR.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg states that the nihilists there have issued circulars demanding that the Russian government shall put a stop to the cruel treatment of prisoners, especially women, and enjoining the greatest caution upon all Nihilists in consequence of recent arrests.

MOVEMENTS OF THE FRENCH.

HONG KONG, Oct. 1.—All is quiet at Canton. Advices from Haiphong state that 550 French troops, under Col. B. Bichot, started on the 29th ult., by way of the Tonquin river for Bacninh. It is believed an expedition left Hai Noi at the same time for Bacninh.

ASIA.

DEATH OF A PRINCE.

CABUL, Oct. 1.—The youngest and favorite son of the ameer of Afghanistan died here of measles.

NOTABLE DEAD.

FUNERAL OF COLONEL GEORGE KNAPP.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—The funeral of Col. George Knapp of the Republican took place this afternoon. It was one of the largest ever seen here. Besides large delegations from the Merchants' Exchange, Knights of St. Patrick, Society of Mexican Veterans, and Excelsior lodge of Odd Fellows, over 200 employes of the Republican office were present. Several hundred of the oldest and most prominent citizens were also present to attest their respect for deceased. Services were held both at the family residence and at the St. George Episcopal church. Rev. Drs. Fulton and Schuyler officiated at the latter. The cortege to the cemetery was very large. The remains were buried in Bellefontaine cemetery.

ACCIDENTS.

TERRIBLE TRAIN COLLISION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A special to the Observer at 1:30 from Fort Plain says: The train that left Utica about 11 o'clock collided with a train from Fort Plain, three miles from here, telescoping each and making a complete wreck. Both engines now stand upright. It is reported sixteen persons were killed and several wounded.

FIRES.

FIRED BY AN INCENDIARY.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—The [illegible] special says: [illegible] of a woman burned to death [illegible] evidence failed to implicate [illegible] and [illegible] who were arrested, and they were discharged. The testimony established [illegible] that the house had been fired by an incendiary.

CATHOLIC CHURCH BURNED.

[illegible], Oct. 1.—Fire broke out at [illegible] this evening in St. John's Catholic church. The whole building was gutted. The vestments and sanctuary vessels were saved. Crowds of women gathered around the edifice weeping.

If we were in Bonanza Flood's place, before we built a $5,000,000 house in San Francisco we would go and buy that old sign down on Washington street, in that city, now being exhibited at the old stand: "Flood & O'Brien, Auction Lunch, wines, liquors and cigars." There are other relics of the old place on exhibit, too—notably a block tin "take-up" that Mr. Flood used to manipulate punches in, and an old carving knife that Mr. O'Brien used to handle every noon on a large chuckle of beef. These relics are kept in a glass case and shown to strangers. Mr. O'Brien is dead, but Mr. Flood ought to go and buy them.

CONYERS, GA.—Dr. W. H. Lee says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is a good medicine and many are using it in this place."

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

How the "Courier-Journal" Figures Randall Out and Carlisle In.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 1.—From the Courier-Journal office inquiries have been sent out within the past few months bearing upon the question of the speakership. The Courier-Journal will publish to-morrow the result of its efforts, summarized as follows. There are 190 democratic members of the next house. The democratic caucus will not consist of more than 190 members. From the south there are 101 members, from the entire east 42, from the north and west 53. Friends of Randall claim that after Cox is out of the way, 15 out of 21 members from New York will go to Randall. This claim is exaggerated, but grant it. It now gives him 12 votes from that state and half of the remaining 9 votes from the east, and he has 41 votes. Give him 15 votes from the south, which is the largest number claimed by his friends and 5 more than he will ever receive, and he has 56 votes. Out of the 53 in the west the most sanguine friends of Randall do not expect more than 15. This number, added to 56, would give Randall 71 votes, or 21 votes less than is needed to give him the nomination, if there should be a full caucus.

Now for Carlisle's chances. We predict he will receive the following vote on the second or third ballot from the states named: Alabama 5, California 5, Illinois 8, Iowa 2, Louisiana 3, Michigan 3, Missouri 9, New York (Cox out) 12, North Carolina 3, South Carolina 4, Texas 8, West Virginia 2, Arkansas 4, Georgia 8, Indiana 8, Kentucky 8, Massachusetts 2, Mississippi 5, Nevada 1, New Jersey 1, Ohio 9, Tennessee 5, Virginia 1, Wisconsin 4; total 116. Cox will receive more votes probably on the first ballot than Mr. Randall. He will not get less than 45 and may rise to 60. Springer will receive 7 or 8, and there will perhaps be 10 or 12 scattering votes. The contest may narrow down between Carlisle and Cox.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 1.—The Courier-Journal says editorially to-morrow about the speakership: "Outside of Pennsylvania Randall's strength is meager and scattered. If he even gets fifty votes in the caucus it will surprise us. Forty constitute a large allowance to give him at present. Our means of ascertainment are consistent. Of 123 letters, public and private, received at the Courier-Journal office our estimates have been carefully gleaned. In the last house there were only thirteen democratic votes led by Mr. Randall recorded in favor of Keifer, Kelley, Robeson and tariff. In the next there was just one. The last congressional canvass was fought distinctly upon tariff reform, and on that issue we carried the next house by an overwhelming majority. It is not likely that there are any more protection democrats in the next house than there were in the last, and it is simply preposterous to believe the democrats of the next house will reverse the party record, not only to the last congress but for the last thirty years, and put themselves under the lead of a man who separated himself from the party to help Keifer, Kelley and Robeson and to fasten a vicious thieving job on the people of the United States.

THE MEN RANDALL LET ASTRAY.

Among those who represent the policy of tax reform, which the democratic party has stood for in every national canvass since 1840, on which it won victories in '44, '52, '56 and '76, on which it carried the country in 1875 and 1882, and to which it pledged itself, with only thirteen dissenting votes, in the last congress, were led by Randall out of the democratic party and into the republican camp. Any sound democrat will make a safe available speaker. At present Mr. Carlisle seems decidedly in the lead. He is a gentleman of character, ability and honesty, and is a scholarly and square man. He is a great presiding officer, and a representative of the best traditions of the party. Being a Kentuckian, a neighbor and a friend, it would be strange if he did not carry with him into the race for speaker our cordial personal sympathy. But the Courier-Journal is making no man's fight.

NOT A CONTEST OF MEN.

This is a contest of ideas, not individuals. If it were a mere contest of men, Randall would suit us as well as another. It is no such thing. Therefore, in opposing his election as an act of suicide or ruin, we set up no candidate above another, and urge the friends of revenue reform to stand together. There is at least a brave, long-serving, able and more famous veteran, S. S. Cox; there is that equally fearless, sound, northwestern democrat and statesman, Wm. R. Morrison. The house could not go wrong with either. Indeed, the party of revenue reform is full of tried and true men, to any of them may be confided the organization of the next house.

IN THE DARK CONTINENT.

The French Repeat Their Tamatav Tricks—Stanley's Movements.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A Herald special from London of September 26 says: Our special correspondent, who has just returned from Madeira, sends the following communication, dated Funchal, September 15, about the doings of M. de Brazza and Stanley on the Congo. He says that Lieutenant Van Devende, a Belgian who left Stanley three weeks ago and is now on his way home, being at Lavallo, arrived from the west coast of Africa to-day, [illegible] and sailed again. He gave various interesting details of the high-handed action of the French at Loango, and the destruction of a place on the coast called Mantimpombe, incorrectly spoken of [illegible] in a recent telegram. [illegible] a village containing about 400 inhabitants. A [illegible] in which the natives were [illegible] surprised by a peremptory message sent [illegible] by Captain Cordier, commanding the French gunboat Sagittaire.

In spite of the well established local custom forbidding the purchase of land at Loango by foreigners, Captain Cordier insisted on buying a strip of territory on the coast. The king of Loango refused to comply with his request, but professed willingness to let him have it on lease. This did not suit Captain Cordier's purpose, and an ultimatum, accompanied by the promise of handsome presents, was sent to the luckless monarch, who was given to understand that he must either yield at once or he would have his village burned down. Terrified by the threat, the king consented, but did so only under protest, and showed no alacrity to fulfill his part of the contract. On this, the French commander, with what at this distance looks like unjustifiable barbarity, determined to repeat the Tamatav trick. The coveted land was occupied, the village of Mantipombe was destroyed, and by a timely flight the wretched inhabitants just managed to escape the roasting which now appears to be the mildest penance that may be hoped for any aborigines audacious enough to resist the arbitrary orders of the fire-eating French lieutenants and bumptious French admirals.

Lieutenant Van Dervelde informed me that toward the end of August Stanley, with 100 whites, was at Stanley Pool, preparing to reascend Congo as far as the falls. He was then in excellent health and looking forward to returning to Europe in January. So far he has accomplished the work he set himself to his own satisfaction. The natives have ever since his return given him their assistance in the heartiest manner. The king at Il looks favorably on his enterprise and thanks to careful avoidance of political intriguing by the expedition, all complications have been avoided. Twelve stations, extending from the coast along the Quillou or Livoli to Stanley Pool, thence doubling back along the Congo to Majorigo and Vivi, have been established, and two whites have been left in charge of each station. A magnificent country has thus been opened up to commerce.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

An Important Convention Called.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The following circular is being issued by the department of agriculture: A convention of representatives of all classes interested in animal industries of the United States will be held in Chicago, Thursday and Friday, November 15 and 16, for conference concerning contagious diseases among domestic animals. In addition to an address and report, the following topics are proposed for discussion: First, the extent to which contagious diseases exist among domestic animals in this country; second, the modes by which they are introduced, or disorders disseminated; third, methods by which they may be eradicated, or infected districts be disinfected; fourth, efficiency of existing legislation in relation to such diseases. It is desired that this convention may be national and thoroughly representative in its character. The time and place has been selected for the convenience of a large number of those directly interested in the questions to be discussed, who are reported to be in attendance at the annual fat stock show, under the auspices of the Illinois state board of agriculture, and that the meeting of a number of live stock associations, to be held during the continuance of his show. Agricultural, live stock and dairy associations are invited to send representatives, and all persons interested in breeding, rearing, transporting, importing or exporting any class of farm animals will be welcomed to the convention.

Issued standard silver dollars for the week ending September 29, $691,492; corresponding period last year, $561,499.

Lieutenant Garlington in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Lieutenant Edward Garlington, of the Seventh cavalry, who commanded the Greely relief expedition, arrived at Washington this morning from New York and reported at the war department. He subsequently visited the signal office and had a consultation with Captain Mills, acting chief signal officer. Lieutenant Garlington will report directly to Secretary Lincoln as soon as that officer returns to Washington, and meantime declines to say anything whatever on the subject of his expedition.

Homestead Entry Canceled.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The commissioner of the general land office has canceled the homestead entry of a Dakota customs officer, because the laws under which he held there permit him to reside in town, thus precluding the possibility of actually residing upon the lands sought to be entered as required by the homestead laws.

Black Smallpox.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Surgeon Mair, of the marine hospital service at Brownsville, Texas, sends the following, recently received from Mexico: In Tapa Chaula, state of Chiapas, a pest reigns on account of the great mortality caused by black smallpox. The town has a population of 10,000, and 1200 have died, decomposition setting in in many cases before death.

The Corean Embassy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The Corean embassy to-day made official calls upon the heads of the different foreign legations. To-morrow they will visit the state, war and navy departments.

The Sharon-Hill Scandal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Senator Sharon's return to this city has revived the question of his alleged marriage with Miss Aggie Hill, and the charge of adultery brought by her against him. In an interview on the subject Sharon again emphatically denied the truth of the charges, saying: "The written marriage contract, into which Neilsen claims I entered, and any other similar document bearing my name, are simple forgeries." He will seek, he states, every redress the law affords him to punish those who are assailing him in this matter, for the sole purpose of blackmailing. The attorney states that Governor Richard of Wisconsin, who attended the wedding of Miss Flora Sharon with Sir Thomas Hesketh, will come from the east and testify that he heard Senator Sharon acknowledge that he had been secretly married to Miss Hill. The matter does not come up in court until the 11th instant.

The Yellow Fever Patients.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The quarantine officer reports that the yellow fever patients on board the Newbern are recovering. The sick will be removed from the steamer and placed on a floating hulk, so that the other passengers may not be exposed, as at present, to the fever. No new cases have developed since the arrival of the steamer. Every possible precaution is being taken to prevent contagion with the shore. All letters sent by those on board to friends on shore are fumigated before delivery. None of the passengers have been permitted to leave the vessel. The reported death of second officer Graham was premature. It was believed for a few moments after a violent fit of vomiting that the man had ceased to live, but he rallied, and although low his condition has improved. There was another sharp shower this morning. Weather cool.

Shipping Intelligence.

Arrived—Steamer Columbia, Bolles, 76 hours from Portland, via Astoria 60 hours, passengers and merchandise, to O. R. & N. Co.; schooner Tidal Wave, Farnham, 12 days from Port Madison, lumber, to E. M. Herrick & Co.; schooner Makah, Thompson, 12 days from Port Discovery, lumber, to Ackerson, Moore & Co. Clearances—Steamer Idaho, Carroll, Astoria and Nanaimo, Goodall, Perkins & Co. Departures, Sept. 30—Steamer Dakota, Johnson, Victoria, etc.; steamer State of California, Debney, Astoria, British steamer Sardinia, Gaudin, Victoria.

Thirty-Four Lives Lost.

At the California powder works, by the explosion of Saturday evening, a call of the roll shows thirty-three Chinamen missing and Walter Walker, assistant superintendent. He was the only white man killed. The immediate cause of the explosion is not known, and probably never will be, as no one of those inside the mixing room where the explosion took place escaped. The loss to property has not yet been determined.

The Yellow Fever Sufferers.

There are no further developments of the yellow fever brought here from Mexico in the steamer Newbern. Quarantine is rigidly maintained, and as the patients on board the ship are reported recovering, it is believed that any danger to the city will soon pass away. The weather is cool with a breeze from the west.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

News Notes from Victoria—Terrible Accident to a Young Naval Officer.

VICTORIA, Sept. 28.—Sandford Fleming, ex-chief engineer of the Canadian Pacific railway, and Rev. Grant, principal of the Kingston college arrived last evening, having come from Canada via the route of the Canadian Pacific railway. They were only twenty eight days from Winnipeg to Kamloops. They speak highly of the Kicking Horse pass through the Rocky mountains adopted by the Canadian Pacific. Fleming's business is to look after the interests of an Atlantic cable from Victoria to Japan and China.

The Wellington colliery strike ended last night. Many miners returned to work to-day, and the rest will follow soon.

Last night Lieutenant Lees, of H. M. S. Swiftsure, met with a terrible accident. The night being dark and foggy, he drove his horse and village cart into a deep ditch in the suburbs of the city. The horse, cart and driver fell into a heap at the bottom. The lieutenant being under the animal's feet, the animal, in its struggles to free himself, kicked the whole upper part of Lees' face in, carrying away the nose, right eye and both cheeks, and breaking the upper jaw into fragments. The injured man groped his way to a house, where he could only make the accident known by signs and moans. As quickly as possible he was taken to the hospital, where his injuries were pronounced fatal. Lees is a young man deservedly popular, and stands high in the estimation of the officers of the fleet.

YAQUINA BAY.

Railroad Gossip and Speculation—The Government Bars at the Entrance, Etc., Etc.

Corvallis Gazette, Sept. 28th.

During a trip to Yaquina bay last week we had an opportunity of seeing the work which has been done towards building a railroad from here to that place. The company, in the way of grading, making cuts, tunnels, bulkheading along the bay, building their wharf and depot at the western terminus, have certainly spent an immense amount of money, and what is much regretted at this time is that the work is not being pushed at present. People all along the road and at both ends are anxiously waiting the time when the work shall again commence to finally put it through, and they are very desirous that such time will not be far distant. Those who look on the dark side of things express fears that for some reason the company will not be permitted, while others, with brighter hopes, are looking forward to an early day for the work again to commence. One thing certain to every observer is that it is difficult to understand how the company can in any way ever realize anything for the large amount of moneys expended upon the road, aggregating, probably, not less than one-half to three-quarters of a million dollars, unless they complete the road and make the investment active and available. The road to the bay is the best mountain road we ever saw in any direction.

At Newport things were quite dull, but very few visitors there, and people generally complain that the coming winter would be one of hard times. Some are looking forward to the time when the railroad is completed for prosperous times, while some there express fears of its early completion. In fact, if more of the people living through that country would put themselves in condition to produce something for a railroad to carry away from there, there would be much more necessity and inducement for a railroad.

On Tuesday, in company with Messrs. Wm. Grant and W. T. Wilbur, we crossed over to south beach and there passed for a time to view the government works, where we found Engineers Polhemus and Nice in charge of the work. Mr. Polhemus kindly showed us over the work and what had been done. During the continuance of the work under the present appropriation, the [illegible] has been extended [illegible] 1000 feet, the previous appropriation [illegible] 1000 feet, making altogether 2000 feet of this work, which has already been completed. The work appears to be very solid and durable, and Mr. Polhemus is confident that it will withstand the storms. It is the intention, according to the original plans, to still continue the jetty some 1500 feet further out into the ocean in the same direction as heretofore. After this is done the next thing will be to start on the north side of the bay and build another tramway out into the ocean about 1800 feet. Mr. Polhemus says the water on the bar is some two feet deeper than it was ever been before during the two years which the work has been going on. The jetty thus far has been built with mats of brush fastened solidly together and sunk in the water and a heavy deep layer of large rock on top and then another layer of brush and then rock on top and so on until it is built as high as desired.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

Wheat is selling for 63 cents at Pendleton.

The railroad grade between Pendleton and Centerville is well under way, and will be fully completed in a few days.

East Oregonian: Murphy brothers, extensive farmers living north of town, have just finished threshing. Their wheat crop amounts to over 50,000 bushels.

Fires are raging in the Blue mountains. Extensive fires are burning on the Linkton, Sommerville and Woodward roads, making travel dangerous. Quite a number of freighters are delayed on the road. The fire extends on the Woodward road for a distance of fifteen miles. A few days ago twelve head of cattle, while shut up in a corral, were burned to death.

Western Oregon.

A threshing machine belonging to a man named Burchet, who was threshing at Rock creek, Marion county, recently, was destroyed by fire, together with a few hundred bushels of wheat, while the men were at dinner.

Jacksonville Sentinel: Mrs. Fawn, the wife of Wong Back Fawn, a Chinese merchant of Waldo, deserted the bed and board of her lord and master last week, running away with another man, and taking along some $1100 belonging to her husband and $300 which had been intrusted to her care by another Chinaman. The parties have been seen in Portland, but no arrests have yet been reported.

There is not a vacant house in Ellensburg.

Hard characters are about to take Old Tacoma.

Montesano will be a money order office after January 1.

The Tacoma Park association has incorporated with a capital of $50,000. The object is to establish a race course and fair grounds four miles south of New Tacoma.

The steamship Mexico went aground in a dense fog on Wednesday night near Robinson's Point, between New Tacoma and Seattle, and remained there all night. She floated off in the morning and left for San Francisco on her regular time.

Ellensburg Localizer: In a month's time there will not be a quarter section of vacant land fit for settlement left in this valley. There are immigrants camped in various places on both sides of the river, searching for locations upon which to erect homes.

Spokane Chronicle: Almost every day witnesses the departure of squads of mounted men for the Coeur d'Alene gold fields. The excitement has extended itself to that degree that our business men, capitalists, those who are erecting buildings, are experiencing some difficulty in obtaining mechanics and workmen to carry forward their improvements.

Sprague Herald: On the 28th day of last month John Frazer, partner of H. Patterson in the stock business near Badger mountain, left Sprague with supplies for their camp, since which time nothing was heard from him, and his sudden disappearance remained a profound mystery until last week, when a clue was found that explained it all. Mr. Frazer, after leaving Sprague, concluded to go to Spokane Falls with some horses, and took with him one of Moses' Indians to assist him across the country. It transpired that they camped together the first night out, when the Indian killed Frazer and took his horses, [illegible] effects and [illegible] in money. Last week a horse was found among the [illegible] with a [illegible] dis hanging to his body. Further search resulted in finding the remaining [illegible] in the vicinity. A young Indian lad who was with the party told the [illegible] that the Indian had murdered Frazer and thrown the body into Moses lake, where it was found. He also led them to where they could find the murderer, after making them promise that he had nothing to do with disclosing this. As near as we can learn, the Indian has been found [illegible] dealt with summarily.

WILL CARLETON.

An Interesting Chat With the Michigan Poet.

Denver Tribune.

"Under what circumstances was your poem, 'Over the Hills to the Poor-house,' written?"

"While a school boy I was interested in visiting the almshouses and chatting with the paupers. Among the acquaintances I made there were two very worthy old people whose children had abandoned them to their old age. The father told me his story. The details were not, of course, the same as related in the poem, but in them was the idea afterwards elaborated."

"Did it not have a strong moral effect?"

"It did. It was published in the Harper's Weekly at the time, with illustrations. In two months a friend wrote me that the verses had produced an [illegible] effect that he [illegible] sent to his parents, who he thought had been [illegible] by him and injustice [illegible]. I have heard of cases where people have been taken from [illegible] by penitent children. In this connection I might instance the case of an old man who died a pauper at Cleveland. When his chest was opened and the meager contents examined a copy of the poem was found carefully rolled up. From these and numerous other affecting incidents, I believe that the poem has done some good. 'Betsy and I Are Out' has come back to me at numerous times. When stopping at a hotel in a large city recently, the proprietor came up to me and [illegible] a very detailed story [illegible] manner [illegible] resulting himself [illegible]."

"What are the processes of composition?" was asked.

"A poem will grow gradually in the writer's mind. It will be some time, perhaps years, in reaching its fruition. The [illegible], again, he may not be conscious of its growth. [illegible] and, again, he might go on with his poem to much the same manner as in building a house. At the [illegible] processes I think take place in the mind of a poet."

"I think, however, that the inspiration so much talked of is largely work. It must attend the artist, the musician or the mechanic. A true mechanic feels true inspiration when he feels that he is doing his best. Every man has a genius for something, and when he feels that he is in his proper sphere he will get inspiration. The trouble is that men often miss the calling, and when this is so the unfortunates who have [illegible] up hill journey. I don't think inspiration can be depended on without good square work. Inspiration is the result of work. The old saying we find in our school books that 'there is no excellence without great labor,' is true. Dr. Johnson used to say that 'every author can write at any time if he will set himself doggedly about it.' There is a good deal of truth about this. I am not as great a believer in waiting for what they are pleased to term their 'mood' as some other people. I have known able men to wait all their lives and then in the end die without having achieved anything. Life is too short for moods."

"The important [illegible] to ask in writing a poem is, Will it accomplish [illegible] good? For a poem to be at its best and in the fullest sense worthy of circulation, it should have a [illegible] object to accomplish. In proportion as it accomplishes that object it may be considered successful. In my work I have aimed to express my thoughts of the people in the people's tongue; I strive for the thought first and the form afterwards."

"How long have you been writing verse?"

"While quite a boy I began contributing to the papers. On graduating, in 1869, I was the poet of the class and at the college exercises read my 'Rifts in the Clouds,' which has since been incorporated in the volume of farm ballads. This was in reality my maiden effort. Since then four books of poems have been issued, and the aggregate sales have been $200,000."

They All Fared Low.

Chicago News.

That the Indian is a diplomat has frequently been asserted, but it has been demonstrated by the speech of one of the chiefs to the senate committee, composed of Logan, Dawes and Cameron, who are visiting the Sioux tribe. He said: "We listen with respect to the men, as we understand but one of them is to be our next great father." Then Logan, Dawes and Cameron all faced their backs on their breasts and bowed very low, while the chiefs all grinned.

We believe the Chicago editors could be persuaded to accept cabinet positions, and are fixing themselves.

TUESDAY MORNING, OCT 2, 1883

HOW THE MAYOR MISSES IT

The mayor of Portland, who has been detected and exposed in a transaction compared with which robbery on the highway would be an excusable offense, because less infamous to the perpetrator and less harmful to society has adopted a line of defense which to him no doubt seems altogether effective. In his contribution to the Sunday organ of vice and infamy, to which he seems to have appealed in consequence of his affinity for disreputable things, he assumes that disapproval of his bargain with Besser to sell the offices and rob the city can spring only from personal malice, and therefore, he denounces all criticisms of his conduct, particularly those uttered by this journal, as "personal attacks upon private character!"

This mode of defense is not entirely original. The mayor has borrowed it from one whom he follows and admires but in whose hands it was not more effective than it now is in his own. When it was objected to this individual, as a reason why he should not be given a place of high public trust that he had deserted his family, had changed his name, had committed bigamy, had played for years the part of an impostor, had proposed subsequently to abandon the wife whom he had bigamously married (after having lived with her nearly ten years) that he might take a third woman to wife and finally that he had corruptly participated in jobs and contracts while holding high official place, he answered that recital of these facts as objections to his claims for the highest place of public trust at the disposal of the state, was an indefensible attack upon private character which never could be fitly denounced. We humbly submit to the mayor that he has borrowed a very flimsy and insufficient line of defense. Having sold certain offices and the right to rob the city and having exacted a written promise that he should receive his dividend of the loot, he does such intelligence as he may be supposed to possess very little credit when he treats all objections to the proceeding as "attacks upon his private character," made for the malicious purpose of pulling him down.

As little does the mayor help his case by assuming this to be a personal controversy between himself and the editor of THE OREGONIAN. The mayor's offense is a public one. It is not the judgment of THE OREGONIAN, but the public judgment that sits heavily upon him, and the former has no weight except as it expresses the voice of the latter. The mayor's mistake is precisely that which the common thief might make in supposing the matter at issue before the jury to be simply a personal controversy between the members of the jury and himself. The common thief is not allowed to make this issue, nor is the public rascal permitted to do it.

Therefore all those parts of the mayor's "defense," except that in which he confesses the infamous crime against the city revealed in his contract with Besser, is merely irrelevant. He is not criticised or censured by anyone for personal reasons or on personal grounds, but solely because he sought a public trust to betray it for bribes. His conduct as a public man is corrupt and infamous. To this extent only is it a personal matter, namely, that it has fixed an indelible brand of reproach and dishonor upon his personal as well as upon his official character.

It is not only interesting but useful sometimes to get an honest expression of opinion from an intelligent man, whose only care for government is that it should be wise and pure and economically administered. Such a man we think was Mr Erastus B. Goodwin, a Connecticut farmer who told the senatorial committee on labor and education that the government should not interfere with labor and trade or meddle with educational systems, that a healthy competition was necessary to the development of resources, that under existing laws this country was not permitted to compete with foreign nations in the markets of the world, as she was fully able to do, that her ability to produce was restricted by restricting the markets for her products, that if competition in trade with other nations could be secured, the wages of workingmen would not be lowered but that on the contrary their compensation would increase with the general growth of prosperity, that so long as a high protective tariff exists, the American laborer will be at a disadvantage; that protection fosters monopolies of every kind; that it taxes all industries for the sake of enabling a few to make money, and that the agricultural interests are obliged to bear the heaviest burdens, receiving nothing in return. Mr Goodwin, we judge, belongs to that estimable class of New England citizens who are said to have good "horse sense," and if the statesmen paid more attention to the views of such men and less to that of constituents who want the government to make up to them what they lack in enterprise and energy and thrift, there would be more blessings for us all than there are at present.

Judge Atkins, of Richmond, Va., in charging the grand jury on Thursday said that the strict enforcement of the libel law would be of great benefit to the community, as it "would prevent many of the unseemly shooting matches which usually follow these publications, and gentlemen would soon begin to look to the law for their vindication, instead of the 'field of honor.'" The southern gentlemen are altogether too sensitive about what blackguards say about them, as well as to the bluntness of expression, which modern methods of business have introduced. When they come to be business men they will have less palaver, and outgrow their sensitiveness. Then libel suits, as well as shooting matches will be looked upon as anachronisms, as they are in the great centers of business in the northern states.

The democratic party yearns for a "deep reaching reform" in the civil service, which will give it control of all the offices and then enable it to keep them. Mr. Leon Abbott, the democratic candidate for governor in New Jersey, has placed himself squarely on the platform, and says that after his election "the democrats that will be rewarded will be the ones who do the work of the campaign." Gov Butler says that the "government belongs to its friends," and Senator Thurman describes the work of civil service reform as "taking the boys in out of the cold and warming their toes." The general position of the party as sustained by the New York Sun, is that "the republican party must go."

The Salt Lake Tribune proposes to attach the western portion of Montana to Idaho and make it a grand state. It says it would be the "banner mountain state and the most magnificent mining state in the nation." The idea is good, says the Nez Perce News, "but can be improved on by adding the four northern counties of Idaho to Washington territory, which, on its admission, will make the grandest state with the most diversified interests in the sisterhood."

A real estate dealer in Spirit Lake, Iowa, has given up the business, saying that a man cannot be a successful land speculator and a Christian at the same time. If this is the case, we shall not look for a religious boom in Seattle at present. There are also some hindrances to a work of grace in this vicinity.

Each successive word and act of the mayor concerning the Besser bargain is more foolish than preceding ones. He seems ambitious to wear the ermine of stupidity without a stain of moral intelligence.

The mayoralty of Portland is an honor when conferred by the free suffrages of the citizens but a disgrace, a shame, an infamy, when obtained by the infamy of purchase and corruption.

"THEIR JOINT PARTNERSHIP"

Burke had a very powerful mind and a remarkable facility and freedom of expression and yet he acknowledged his inability to frame an indictment against a whole people. The reason for this acknowledgement could not have been a sense of personal deficiency. It was rather we may believe his consciousness that a whole people can never be justly chargeable with responsibility for the crimes of their rulers or public servants. Take the case before us and subject it to two or three tests. How large a proportion of the citizens of Portland who voted for Mayor Chapman would have done so if they had known of the existence of the contract which has lately been made public? A very large proportion of the citizens did not vote for him at all but on the contrary opposed his election, and were urged and encouraged to do so by a portion of the press of the city. Had these people any share in this corrupt bargain? Can those people who have been shocked at this disclosure even though they voted for the mayor be indicted as accessories? We think not. In order to make out a joint co-partnership in a public crime, something definite must be relied upon. There must have been either a participation before the act or an approval after it. When there is not even a general personal sympathy with a disgraced man but on the other hand a feeling of disgust and reprobation the grounds for "an indictment against a whole people" are reduced to so low a minimum that a man of greater ability than Mr Burke would if equally honest find himself unequal to the task of framing one. We do not wish to be misunderstood. This community has many faults. It fails as Athens did in Demosthenes' time, and as communities usually do in "continued energy" of effort to keep itself virtuous and pure. But we cannot accept for ourselves or recognize as applicable to others, who opposed the election of the mayor "a realizing sense of joint partnership" in his corrupt bargains. Such indiscriminate and wholesale imputations, although they may be carefully guarded and reluctantly uttered and uttered only with a good intent, are not only unwise but, to a certain degree damaging to virtue, because they tend to confuse that sense of right and wrong upon which we must rely for the prevalence of personal and public purity. Dr. Arnold, the famous headmaster of the Rugby school, shrank, as he tells us, from forcing upon boys moral distinctions which their minds were not sufficiently developed to bear. He recognized the danger of confusion which would be followed by reaction and so he never told his boys that they were guilty of more than they would at once recognize as true.

The great mass of people have really much less to do with public affairs, even in a popular government, than is usually supposed. Public history, is now as it was when Paley wrote his celebrated "Essay on the Evidences of Christianity," "a register of the successes and disappointments, the vices, the follies and the quarrels of those who engage in contentions for power." It takes but little notice of the daily decencies and proprieties and integrities and purities of private and social life of the "general probity in the transactions of business, the soft and humane manners in the mass of the community," and therefore as Paley says the influence of religion eludes "the grasp and touch of public history." The representations of history with respect to religion he says are "defective and fallacious in a greater degree than they are upon any other subject." We do not believe it has a good effect upon the mind to be forced to think, whenever the community is shocked by the occurrence of crime that we are no better than the criminal. There may be in many of us an abyss of possibilities of crime of which we have happily no conception, but it can have no healthful influence upon the mind to have this abyss uncovered and all these possibilities brought by the imagination vividly before it. In many respects—especially with the young—ignorance is innocence. The angel of scandal who, with his cloak streaming behind his back unroofs our houses and exposes the skeleton in every closet, has always been recognized as an angel of darkness whose visits breed a moral pestilence. It does not always tend to restrain people from infamous crimes to tell them that they are capable of committing them. We believe on the contrary in the healthful influence of broad distinctions between the good and bad—such distinctions as are at once recognized as just and true. The man who said we are not certain whether it was Newton or Bunyan—when he saw a murderer going up the Newgate stairs, "There goes myself but by the grace of God" meant to express in the strongest possible language his sense of dependence upon restraining grace. But his startling expression has done, in the application which has been made of it, great harm. It has suggested possibilities of evil which would otherwise have lain dormant, if they existed at all until they ceased to be possibilities even, and instead of making men humble has made them desperate.

THE NEZ PERCE RESERVATION

The progress of northern Idaho in general and of that region about Lewiston in particular, is hindered by the fact that a great section containing the best level areas of the whole territory is an Indian reservation and so not open to settlement. Three quarters of a million acres of land every foot of it available for pasturage or agriculture is held for the home of a few hundred Indians who if every one should be given a full section of land would occupy only a fraction of it. A few of these Indians carry on farming after a primitive fashion, but not more than two thousand acres of the whole tract if indeed there is so much, is under the plow. The only use made of the reservation besides this little attempt at farming, is for the pasturage of a thousand or so cayuse ponies, not worth five dollars per head on an average.

The people of Lewiston feel severely the disadvantages of neighborhood with this unproductive tract, which, if settled, would naturally be tributary to their town. Not only does it yield nothing but its barren width prevents settlement of the country east of it. It is a blight upon the development of the northern part of the territory.

The Nez Perce News clamors to have the reservation thrown open to settlement. It draws a picture of the country north of the Clearwater river and of that south both in that columns of argument. The northern country, it says, is 2500 feet above the sea level, and its climate is naturally cold and frosty. Ten years ago it was regarded as worthless for agricultural purposes. It was sneered at as a very good summer camping ground for squaws digging camas. It was not only isolated and far from market but it was practically inaccessible. Its wagon roads followed up the bed of the precipitous gulches to the table lands. To-day it supports a population of 50,000. It is an exclusively agricultural population, and, despite the rigors of its climate they have given the country a continental reputation for fertility and productiveness. It ships annually millions of bushels of wheat. There is a continuous line of unbroken settlements from the Clearwater river to Spokane Falls and beyond, a distance of over one hundred miles. The climate is cold and frosty, but the soil is rich, and the sturdy arm of industry has utilized it for productive purposes until it is now the granary of the northwest and a mighty commonwealth of American home builders. Villages churches and schools dot every country cross road. A great transcontinental railroad with its far-reaching branches traverses it in every direction. Towns and cities spring up and flourish as if by magic in this rich and productive country, and its inhabitants exhibit a truly American determination and enterprise in their ceaseless efforts to develop its latent resources which are attracting the attention of capitalists and home-seekers from all parts of the republic.

This is the country north of the Clearwater river.

Viewing the other side it says: South of the Clearwater there is also an area of agricultural land quite as rich and extensive as that to the northward. The country south of the river is the most desirable of the two for settlement and occupation. Its altitude is lower and its climate more genial. It is well watered by running streams and ever living springs; the grasses and native vegetation grow upon spontaneously and with almost tropical luxuriance on its prolific soil; the mountain ranges which shelter it are fringed with fine forests of timber, it is drained by a river navigable for forty miles above its mouth; it is within easy distance of the markets of the world and is accessible at all seasons of the year. With all these advantages it is a country given over to the loneliness of desolation. You can ride for sixty miles without seeing a man, bird or beast. With an area and soil capable of supporting a dense population, it is as unproductive as the great American desert. Where should be the homes of American freemen the virgin soil cries in vain for the plough. Where towns and cities should be built no living thing greets the eye. All this vast region of three quarters of a million of acres, which would support a dense population is lying as uninhabited and unproductive as upon the day of its creation.

The picture is a strong one and is not over drawn. The Nez Perce Indians are comparatively few and a few thousand acres is all the land they need. The government ought to narrow their reservation to the limits which they can use and open the great body of it to immigration. Of course the Indians should not be robbed of a country which was solemnly given them in treaty but they could be satisfied for the land very easily and at little cost. We hope to see the matter properly presented at Washington this winter.

The contest at Fleetwood park Saturday, while won by Jay Eye See is unsatisfactory. The track was heavy and the time considerably slower than the records of both horses. The defeat of St. Julien partly due to his unfortunate break at the close of the first heat, will not under the circumstances, cause his friends to lose faith, and they will doubtless be as ready as before to back him in another trial with the victor. The race ought to be repeated under better conditions.

In the coming seven or eight days 100 pioneers of Oregon, with their faces toward the east, will traverse the wide continent which they spent as many months in crossing with faces toward the west, thirty years ago. The pioneers train which will be the longest ever run over the road, will start from East Portland at 1 o'clock this afternoon. THE OREGONIAN wishes every honored gray head in the party a pleasant journey and a safe return.

The Douglas county farmers who are allowing apples to rot on the ground will doubtless wish they hadn't when good keepers are bringing $1 50 per box in the Portland market this winter.

Besser goes about the street saying "Well Chapman has made a devilish good mayor anyhow." He thinks so doubtless, because he made him.

A DISPLEASED FREE TRADE DEMOCRAT

ROSEBURG Sept 29

To the Editor of The Oregonian

It appears to me that the method of THE OREGONIAN in handling the tariff question is neither wise just nor politic. I am led to this assertion from the fact that at all times and under all circumstances your journal attempts to make a division in the democratic ranks on this issue. Yet THE OREGONIAN claims to be an independent newspaper and if I may use the term a free trade organ. Taking these two premises for facts it is but just to say that the republican party is a protective party and further that all hope of tariff reform of revenue for tariff only and ultimately of free trade must come through the democratic organization. But it is the very opposition of such able journals as your own which makes the hope deferred. I think I can hazard with perfect safety the remark that the democracy could nominate an unexceptionable candidate for president—say Allen G. Thurman or Andrew Curtin—on an unexceptionable free trade platform and the republican party nominate a man personally objectionable and upon a protective tariff platform THE OREGONIAN with all its proclaimed independence would support the latter. From this premise I can understand the attitude of your journal upon the tariff question. It is simply that you are for free trade nationally but that you will block all practical means of obtaining it. Excuse this scrawl but I am suffering from an acute attack of dyspepsia. Respectfully

FREE TRADER

THE OREGONIAN criticises the position of the democratic party on the tariff question because that position is notoriously a dishonest one. That party professes to favor free trade or a tariff for revenue only yet it is controlled in the most absolute manner by protectionists and free trade democrats desiring party success more than reform of the tariff habitually submit to the high tariff men and sacrifice the principle in which they profess so much interest in order to secure party triumph. For six years the democrats controlled the house of representatives and for two years both senate and house yet the protectionists had it all their own way. Why shouldn't THE OREGONIAN point out the fact that tariff reform is not to be expected from the democratic party?

A LATE CONTRIBUTOR COMES IN

To the Editor of the Oregonian

The gospel of chance has differentiated once again and by chance the newly fledged nondescript is [illegible] Christian evolution. What though it sweeps away the doctrines and ordinances of the church as based on fiction yet if it be "entitle the idea of the Lord Jesus Christ to reign over us" will remain on this globe forever. It accepts the speculations of science as verities disposes of the gravest problems with all the power of asseveration, and though a [illegible] the state in [illegible] still it [illegible] a debonair and in the ballroom waltzes [illegible] in lines of beauty shouts glory as it steps on a train and cries hallelujah when it tears one up. And this is the new idea that is to [illegible] the world at $1 75 a seat and Diana of the Ephesians must blush once more. What though it holds fast to the faith of the Irishman who joined the Shakers "Sure your river [illegible] its plenty of pork and potatoes that we have." Still, it is circumscribed by no such limitations; it pierces the solid granite [illegible] of earth [illegible] and reveals the mysteries of the prehistoric period as it hastens to be one [illegible] It scales the steep heaven as step by step the [illegible] crowns in order [illegible] and [illegible] their eternal round then breaking [illegible] the spirit world it [illegible] the band of the loved and the lost with the dark spirits below and with gay banners flying the sing the same song in grand triumphant procession! What a matter [illegible] As man hurd [illegible] Christianity [illegible] Baron Munchausen is robbed of his plumes at last.

Its solution of the social question is at once felicitous and practical. A man who has lived forty years and has not a competence is nothing less than "a criminal." As the prisons will not hold a great many the most hardened must be hung. Wives, sons and daughters are to be clothed in the very richest materials; thus every branch of industry will be fostered and encouraged—the wheel of wheels the clink of coin the busy hum of trade. [illegible] Oldhamer when he came [illegible] chewed tobacco and drank whisky, and voted the democratic ticket he would have been all right. This sentiment was greeted with shouts of uproarious laughter, and if the Chinese question is not settled at once and forever it is not the fault of Christian evolution or its peripatetic philosopher.

It cuts the gordian knot with a Damascus blade [illegible] coils the [illegible] like a snake into a serpentine sheath. We are told that Brewster [illegible] towers [illegible] the [illegible] of his age. This is a generation of dwarfs and the [illegible] of idol [illegible] is ended. [illegible] no man say this [illegible] king [illegible] are multiplied. Which the emperor made his horse consul [illegible] fool sinners in the [illegible]

The wicked may sin and the foolish imagine a vain thing. Together let them [illegible] his brag and his brother is brag and his sister a humbug and he walketh up and down in the world and he seemeth as if [illegible] and any man who boweth not down to him must be shot.

After the exposure of the infamous trade between Chapman and Besser John M. Ward [illegible] appraiser of merchandise James Lotan United States inspector of boilers George A. Steel, United States postmaster of Portland and John L. Capies state prosecuting attorney all of whom bolted the regular republican nominee for mayor and supported Chapman at the election in June, 1883, must be highly elated over their success in electing him over the regular republican candidate—especially Capies, who warmly congratulated Chapman on his success. It is now in order for him to prosecute him for his high crimes against the city. The question is: will he do it? The citizens of Portland await.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

OREGON CITY Sept 30

To the Editor of the Oregonian

I have been much interested in the discussion from time to time in THE OREGONIAN, of the question of prohibition versus high license but cannot agree with you in some of your conclusions and inferences though I doubt not that four fifths of the community favor the license system and higher license. Just why the state and municipal districts thereof should become partners and [illegible] by the most lucrative profits in the liquor traffic while she furnishes neither men nor means to conduct the business, is not apparent nor is it clear that increased license will insure better order in saloons with substantially the same persons conducting the business. More depends on the person engaged in the business than on the license paid perhaps. Why those only who sell large quantities or supply a large custom and who therefore can afford to pay high license should continue the business while those who have but a limited patronage, and [illegible] who are [illegible] the greed of the state [illegible] altogether [illegible]. The latter class may be quite as orderly as the former and even more needy than the former of the means [illegible] the business.

I am aware that monopoly is a little feature of the [illegible] lately but why it should be fostered in this direction by state legislation [illegible] has not yet been announced. Experience has scarcely [illegible] the utility of the license system [illegible] in the way of suppressing the traffic in liquors the thing desired by its advocates have not been [illegible] or brilliant. The greatest success claimed by THE OREGONIAN is I believe that in Ohio nearly one third of the saloons have been closed by high license. This will probably increase the sales more or less of the larger saloons while it may in some degree lessen the sale of the article but doubtless many of these failures were due to bad location, the sparseness of the settlement or other causes than high license. Men fail occasionally in every business, though unrestrained by license tax. At best it is but a sickly set of oppression, the thing desired by THE OREGONIAN that fails of its object two out of three times. But the people largely favor high license in our state. Perhaps one in favor to one opposed to such a law, and here majorities rule or should rule. But the people have moved in a different and an antagonistic direction to license and it is not for the purpose of discussing the license question but to elicit discussion or an expression of opinion on the pending constitutional amendment adopted by the last state legislature that I have written this. The propriety of prohibiting by amendment of our state constitution the sale and manufacture of spirituous or malt liquors within the state will enter into the election of members to the legislature. Many thousands petitioned the last legislature to inaugurate this amendment and it passed that body or the senate as silently as the burial of Sir John Moore receiving almost a unanimous vote. And I doubt not that it will receive the approval of the next legislature unless public opinion shall change as to its utility.

To bring this amendment to the focus of the voters I wish to submit a few questions. First will the passage of this amendment be of any force to suppress the manufacture or sale of liquors without law to enforce it? Second would not a prohibitory law without this amendment be equally practical and effectual? Third if the amendment is passed, and no prohibitory law enacted will it not abolish all license and openly authorize the unrestrained sale of liquors beer etc without license? My own opinion is perhaps sufficiently indicated by the questions. As the amendment fixes no penalty for its violation and no direction or means for its enforcement it is perhaps obvious to all that it will fail to restrain the manufacture and sale of the same [illegible] and it seems equally clear that no court would [illegible] authorized to issue license in view of a constitutional prohibition of the manufacture and sale of liquors. There seems also no room for reasonable doubt that articles so popular or ready of sale in the market as spirituous liquors beer etc will be [illegible] when no license tax or penalties attach. [illegible] question will [illegible] the [illegible] legislature probably pass a prohibitory statute? Perhaps the most forcible argument [illegible] this question is to say that in Oregon a legislature never has passed such a statute though [illegible] all this [illegible] past [illegible] amendment as they will [illegible] be adopted. We have supposed that four fifths and perhaps greater [illegible] are in favor of license for [illegible] and [illegible] prohibition are so antagonistic that it is fair [illegible] nearly [illegible] the approval of the [illegible] Again suppose [illegible] the amendment [illegible] prohibitory statute [illegible] and two [illegible] are [illegible] hereafter the [illegible] statute repealed [illegible] there not be an unrestricted sale of liquor and [illegible] not the [illegible] license law be [illegible] return to the license system? [illegible] will be in [illegible] that a [illegible] few [illegible] legislatures will be [illegible] the [illegible] to be [illegible] few [illegible] that [illegible] men to [illegible] away at any time [illegible] constitution [illegible] The way into [illegible] What has [illegible] to say on this general subject?

CITY.

[illegible] AFFRAY.—John Eves and Schuyler [illegible] appeared at the police court yesterday in the [illegible] of complaining witnesses, and they looked as if [illegible] had good cause for complaint. Camp had several [illegible] and an abrasion on the [illegible] forehead, while Eves was in even a worse [illegible], with his eyes blackened and a portion of his [illegible] and corresponding section of his nose [illegible] It appears that they attended a ball [illegible] of the notorious "old corner," now [illegible] "argyle rooms," kept by Sam Neville [illegible] the most vicious and degraded of [illegible] a lagging game of faro is run [illegible] the week, with the extra attraction [illegible] Sunday night. Camp and [illegible] drinking, and the former became [illegible] with a barkeeper and knocked [illegible] spectators when the [illegible] on him with a chair and [illegible] plenty. Eves states that [illegible] to the assistance of Camp when [illegible] doorway by one Frank Perry, who [illegible] the neck, and like a savage will [illegible] the lip with his teeth, taking off [illegible] corresponding portion of his mouth. [illegible] in the prisoner's dock a [illegible] ridiculous looking fellow, [illegible] the part of the king [illegible] without any making up. If [illegible] he will find penitentiary beef [illegible] for his massive jaws than human [illegible] dand plan for the chief of police [illegible] on the occasion of the next [illegible] and run in the whole crowd [illegible] A person in this city who has known [illegible] allied a man up in the Wood

[illegible] IN TATTERS.—W. J. Eaton, who kept a [illegible] on First street, between D and E, was [illegible] the victim of sadly misplaced confidence. [illegible] he lost a leg, and the stump [illegible] healed, he took a trip to San [illegible] to get a wooden limb to replace [illegible] as far as possible. His store he [illegible] charge of Fred Helmer during his absence [illegible] supposed by Mr. Eaton to be [illegible] confidence, but that was where he was [illegible] got drunk, sold out the stock of [illegible] and appropriated the proceeds besides [illegible] different places upon the [illegible] Eaton's affairs. The latter's stay in [illegible] was prolonged by some renewed [illegible] his injured limb, and in the meantime, [illegible] out a writ of attachment [illegible] the store was closed and [illegible] of the concern stored away [illegible] office. This was the state of [illegible] returned. He at once paid [illegible] his stock. Although justly [illegible] conduct of Helmer, Mr. [illegible] would be folly for him to prosecute, as [illegible] a breach of trust, and the fellow [illegible] fortunate for Helmer, how [illegible] has not met him since his re[illegible]

[illegible] EXPLOITED.—B. F. Schwartz, [illegible] before the public as the manager of [illegible] has become infatuated with the [illegible] for more amusement from the people [illegible] athletic exhibitions this season [illegible] here, and McMillan, too, but in [illegible] to see these two partners play with [illegible] up their sleeves at the people [illegible] are wrestling. Therefore a new [illegible] to be devised. Muldoon, who [illegible] has been challenged by Dinnie [illegible] and be whipped, and it is [illegible] the "solid man," while he [illegible] latter proposition, will accept the [illegible] a telegram was received yesterday [illegible] that he had mailed a forfeit [illegible] the challenge. If Muldoon should [illegible] in Portland and wrestle a bona fide [illegible] would be a physical contest [illegible] But if it be a put up affair [illegible] each one of the Dinnie [illegible] in this city was people who go to [illegible] exhibition of strength

[illegible] ARRESTED.—Policemen John [illegible] made a raid about one o'clock this [illegible] gambling house on Salmon [illegible] First and Second. Five men were [illegible] gambling with cards and piles of money [illegible] When the police entered [illegible] scrambling and all the coin disappeared [illegible] pockets of the gamblers, except two [illegible] The two officers tried to take all five [illegible] to the city jail, but in the transfer [illegible] escaped. The other four were [illegible] is safely. A young fellow [illegible] years old was the spokesman [illegible] maintaining their appeal to their [illegible] The young fellow denied the charge, [illegible] that he worked hard shovel[illegible] "Let's see your hands" said [illegible] pulling out of the pockets of an old [illegible] that were soft and white as a lady's [illegible] deception was made, and each [illegible] gamblers put up $10 for his ap[illegible] this afternoon

[illegible]—Mr. Perkins of Rooster Rock [illegible] district No. 35 called at this office [illegible] wished to have the attention of [illegible] persons called to the case of [illegible] and has been left destitute by the [illegible] Besides that Mrs. Drexel is an honest [illegible] woman 40 years of age, with [illegible] aged 6 and 10 years, to support, [illegible] in the asylum, hopelessly insane [illegible] all the clothing and bedding of her [illegible] all their winter's supply of provisions [illegible] stock was consumed, leaving [illegible] the clothes they escaped in. The [illegible] a patch of ground for Mrs. [illegible] rails and fenced it herself [illegible] burned. It is difficult to find [illegible] more complete destitution. Kind [illegible] desire to assist these sufferers [illegible] do so by leaving any articles of [illegible] provisions or money with Messrs. [illegible] corner Third and Yamhill [illegible] forward them

[illegible] AND ROBBED.—Jimmy Murphy [illegible] the Merchants' Exchange saloon, [illegible] home at 10:30 on Sunday night [illegible] of North Front and G streets [illegible] of whom knocked him down and [illegible] the umbrella from him and [illegible] there is a gang of thieves [illegible] who are committing numer[illegible] Now that winter is com[illegible] of robberies and bur[illegible] It will be well for all [illegible] abroad late to go armed, [illegible] find a good shotgun well [illegible] in the house. Our [illegible] not large enough to succeed [illegible] of thugs and thieves which [illegible] on us, and some of [illegible] good man is killed by some [illegible] citizens will make things [illegible] remainder

[illegible]—Jacob Kopf and Law [illegible] arraigned in the police court yes[illegible] of stealing a pair of horses from [illegible] The complaining witness is the son of [illegible] a short distance from Forest [illegible] a small farm there and [illegible] his father came out to him [illegible] The old man is addicted to drink [illegible] the influence of liquor imag[illegible] stock belong to him. Some [illegible] a cow and sold it and his son [illegible] But the taking of the horses [illegible] he had his father arrested [illegible] the old man asked him to come [illegible] and that is all he [illegible] The old man says he had a [illegible] and that buying and selling [illegible] The case was continued [illegible] to be summoned from

[illegible] HAS BEEN.—An item yes[illegible] that Joseph Aiken, an old man [illegible] near Wilsburg, had been [illegible] couple of weeks and there [illegible] play. It now transpires that [illegible] and the Jo Allen who has [illegible] county jail for some time as a [illegible] As stated in the first [illegible] and of this he was robbed [illegible] latter was captured and the [illegible] of about $60, was recov[illegible] disposition not to prosecute, [illegible] and given quarters in the [illegible] was tried, found guilty and [illegible] of the trial a few days ago, and [illegible] to his home he may [illegible] he still has money enough to [illegible]

[illegible] MEETING.—A score or more of [illegible] met in Good Templars' [illegible] and Alder streets last evening, [illegible] continued dissatisfaction [illegible] Carriage and Baggage Transfer [illegible] business was transacted [illegible] by Thomas Guinean [illegible] Norden acted as secretary. [illegible] of minutes were dispensed [illegible] that subscriptions from [illegible] aggregated $53 50, and [illegible] by the munificent [illegible] the printing and advertising [illegible] the press of the city, the [illegible] taken regarding the trans[illegible] and baggage, in all amounting [illegible] ordered paid. The meeting [illegible] the call of the president

[illegible] POSTPONED.—Owing to the rain [illegible] frequent showers during [illegible] attendance at the [illegible] yesterday. This may also be [illegible] the first day of fairs never [illegible] The track being very heavy, the [illegible] the trotting race for [illegible] postponed till to-day. This was [illegible] the opening of the fair one day, and [illegible] fair close on Saturday in[illegible] intended. It it stops [illegible] track will undoubtedly [illegible] to be in excellent condi[illegible] promise to be a success. Arri[illegible] exhibits kept coming in [illegible] grounds, despite the meager [illegible]

[illegible] SICKNESS.—Captain Alex [illegible] of the Pacific, who left his ship [illegible] with pneumonia, was [illegible] yesterday. He complained [illegible] he left San Francisco, and when [illegible] was not able to attend to duty [illegible] cared for by friends there [illegible] that Dr. Baker tele[illegible] down physicians [illegible] A special boat was [illegible] on Saturday night convey [illegible] brother. They found [illegible] critical condition, but [illegible] will return to San [illegible] the first

CITY VIEW RAILWAY COMPANY.—Articles of incorporation of the City View Railway Company have been filed in the office of the county clerk. The company propose to construct and maintain a rail way from the junction of Land Water streets, East Portland, to Milwaukie, Clackamas county, and to Sellwood and City View park in this county. The capital stock is $50,000, and the directors are W. M. Creighton, Joseph Buchtel and H. Burbank. Yesterday the surveyors were at work driving stakes for the new line. A large number of rails arrived on the last steamer from San Francisco, and the work will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. Excavations will be commenced this morning. A large force of laborers has been engaged, and it is expected that the road will be finished and the cars running about the first of November.

PIPE PRESENTATION.—In consideration of his close attention to the handling of wool for the firm, Portland Bros. yesterday presented Jas. McCallig with a fine meerschaum pipe. The recipient is in the employ of the Oregon Transfer Company as freight handler on the Ainsworth dock, and other firms speak well of his work. Just after dinner Mr. Lerchen sought out McCallig and in the presence of the usual number of freight clerks and handlers at make the dock their headquarters presented his pipe. The recipient was unable to return his thanks, but Ed Smith was equal to the emergency and thanked the donors in his native tongue—French. He also withdrew the bungs from several hot beer kegs and invited the audience to help themselves.

MUSICAL SOCIETY ORGANIZED.—A number of our German citizens held a meeting last evening at the Portland club, No. 1 Madison street, and organized the Portland Mannerchor. F. J. Alex Mayer was elected president and Frank Cramer secretary. Fifty members have already signed the role. The object of the society is the education of its members in singing, harmony, etc. It is intended to engage a teacher and to have two lessons weekly and a business meeting every two weeks. Chas. Von Otter at dt. Frank Cramer and George Hess were appointed a committee on by-laws and Hannerman Boni[illegible] and [illegible] committee on instructor. Another meeting will be held soon to complete arrangements.

OPIUM FIENDS IN TROUBLE.—T. Harris and T. W. Vean, opium fiends, were up in the police court yesterday, charged with the larceny of pistol, knife and a quantity of clothing from a room in Mrs. [illegible] residence. Harris was up some time since for stealing an opium pipe from a Chinaman. Several other fiends were hanging around the court to see what disposition would be made of Harris and his [illegible] It is a settled fact that when the opium habit has fastened itself upon a victim he is of but little account for any purpose whatever, and that he will resort to any crime to supply himself with the enslaving drug. The case was continued till Wednesday.

ALLEGED FORGERY.—Dr. E. A. Jones, who has an office on First street between B and C, was yesterday arrested on a charge of forgery. Jones was a director of the Columbia River Flume and Lumber Company, and is accused by I. H. Taffe of having forged Taffe's name to a stock subscription list with the purpose of inveigling their persons to subscribe for stocks. The company has a mill on the Columbia river, but it is under attachment for indebtedness. Jones claimed that he signed Taffe's name at the latter's request and that Taffe received the stock.

ARM BROKEN.—Gustave Scoggins, of Washington county, while working with a hay press on Saturday afternoon had his right arm caught by the plunger, breaking the bones in two places between the wrist and he elbow and fearfully lacerating the flesh. He came in on the west side train yesterday afternoon. Mr. Scoggins is out of luck lately, having been fiery roughly handled while endeavoring to quiet some roughs who were fighting on the west side train a day or two since.

LOOKING IN THE RIGHT PLACE.—A fellow giving the name of Hacket, and claiming to be deputized by the chief of police of Seattle to arrest one A. J. Jackson for stealing a boat, was making himself prominent at the Ivy Green saloon last night. He evidently has a correct idea of the proper place to look for a thief, but he was so drunk himself that it was concluded that he must be one of the Seattle celebration specials. He has come over here looking for work, but if he does not change his tactics he will go home shorn.

ON THE WAYS.—The bark C. D. Bryant was taken across the river to the O. R. & N. Co.'s ways yesterday, where she will be hove down. As soon as she is in position for work a force of carpenters will be supplied by John Holland of the O. R. & N. Co., who will complete the repairs in short order. Several bores of sand were found in the hold and it is supposed that a portion of the ship's keel is started or broken off.

MORE THAN THE AVERAGE.—Thirty-five arrests were made by the police during the twenty-four hours ending at midnight on October 1. Six more were made between the hours of 12 and 2 this morning. This is decidedly above the average, as during the past two months just 1600 arrests were made, or a little less than twenty-seven each day. Although Chief Watkinds was appointed chief of police, he has shown commendable energy in discharging the duties of his office.

CALL FOR MESSAGES.—Telegraph dispatches for the following named persons remain uncalled for in the office of the Western Union Company in this city: O. I. Joe Robinson, Ah Wee, Mrs. Geo. E. Aikin, J. J. Dorsey, Mrs. O. B. Phelps, J. B. Bulman, James I. McCormick, Frank Sheridan, John Barry, Ardy Dwyer, S. G. Corbett, Geo. Green, Hon. Lewis F. Watson, D. Rudolph Koener.

SEEKS HER BROTHER.—County Judge Stearns has received a letter from Mrs. J. A. Free[illegible] of Eugene City, asking if any information could be given her concerning the whereabouts of her brother, Hiram L. Wright. She has not seen her brother for fourteen years, but has recently heard that he was in Portland, having come here from Texas, and therefore wrote in the faintest hope of meeting him again.

RIVER PIRATES.—It looks as if in addition to burglars and highwaymen on shore we are to have a gang of river pirates. Three boats were stolen early yesterday, one from the Stark street ferry, one from the Alb[illegible] ferry and one from a private party. It is improbable that one person stole all the boats, and there is doubtless a gang who have supplied themselves with boats and are ready for depredations on the river.

BOARD OF FIRE COMMISSIONERS MEETING

The regular meeting of the board of fire commissioners was held this afternoon, full board present, President presiding, Chief Engineer Jordan in attendance.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The following communications were received:

From chief of police asking that more ropes be allowed to be used at fires—granted.

The secretary informed the board that the sum of $34 receipts of exempt certificates and $125 from the sale of hose carriage to Dallas had been deposited with the city treasurer.

From W. J. Quick and T. A. Dowling asking for exempt certificates, granted.

Reports of companies for month of September were examined.

The report of chief engineer was accepted.

The following change made by the [illegible] was confirmed: George Chamber appointed extraman to No. 2, [illegible] H. Vogt resigned.

The following bills were ordered paid:

COLUMBIA CITY.

The St. Helens Columbian of the 28th inst., says: A large number of deeds to property in and about Columbia City has been recorded during the last two months, and would seem to indicate that the ownership of the valuable water front and lands adjoin us is being gradually but surely concentrated in the hands of a few persons. Some of these purchases are being made on account of capitalists at large sums.

As there has been no attempt to create excitement about the property, and as the owners are not anxious to sell, they doubtless have some good reasons for their confidence in the outcome of Columbia City. Perhaps the survey for another switch to the water front recently acquired by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company has something to do with it. There is considerable inquiry for Columbia City property, which is likely to develop a boom, notwithstanding the reticence of those most directly interested. It is rumored that a party of business men who own water front there will examine the place soon and select grounds upon which to make substantial improvements.

PERSONAL.

Capt. H. L. Tibbalis, wife and daughter, of Port Townsend, are at the Clarendon.

Hamilton F. Corbett was a passenger for San Francisco on the outgoing steamer last night. He will return in ten days.

M. J. Mellis, who is at present in Oakland, California, has had a severe attack of nervous prostration. Late advices indicate a change for the better and strong hopes for his recovery are entertained.

W. T. B. Nicholson, accompanied by his wife and two children, leaves for the east to-day as a member of the pioneer excursion. At New York he will meet his son William, who is now on his way from Liverpool to New York.

GRAND OPENING!

Mozart's Cloak and Suit House

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 3d, 4th and 5th, an elegant display of millinery, cloaks and suits will be exhibited at our store. The millinery department is made up of imported trimmed bonnets and hats, flowers, plumes and birds. Such an exquisite display has never been made in this city. We feel confident that we have imported this season a larger and better selected stock of millinery than any other house in Portland. We invite you to make a inspection of our millinery.

THE SUIT DEPARTMENT

Consists mostly of dresses of our own make, being exact copies of imported fashions. We will exhibit silk, velvet, plush and wool suits. Cloak department is complete, showing different styles, such as walking jackets, silk and cloth dolmans, silk circulars and ulsters, cloak and Langtry ulsters.

Turgeneff during the last few days of his illness frequently expressed a desire to be buried in Russia by the side of his friend Belinsky. His sick room in Bougival was literally besieged by his countrymen and admirers, whose attentions often became annoying. Among others the dramatist Bodin was recently called to read two acts of his new drama to the dying man, who submitted to the ordeal with his usual patience.

SMITH'S SUICIDE.

He Leaves Messages to the Public and to Individuals.

EVIDENCE GIVEN AT THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

He Protests His Innocence to the Last—Touching Farewell to His Wife and Children—Determined to Die.

MCMINNVILLE, Oct. 1.—[Special.]—Great excitement prevails all over this region in regard to the suicide of Geo. W. Smith, convicted of the murder of Mary Petch. The jury after being out about twenty-five hours returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. When the news was communicated to Smith he asked to be allowed to have an interview with his wife and children, in the sheriff's office at Lafayette, where he bade them farewell in an affecting manner.

Wm. Rogers, an alleged burglar, occupied the same cell with Smith, and said that Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock Smith said to him: "I think it mean that the sheriff won't allow me to have a light and take my last farewell of my children. Tuesday at 10 o'clock I am to receive sentence, for they have brought in a verdict of guilty as charged. Here is half a dollar, keep that in memory of me, and when you feel tempted to take a drink look at the piece of money and it will keep you from drink. I want you to deliver some messages for me—one to my wife, one to W. D. Fenton, one to the sheriff and another to the public."

MESSAGES TO THE PUBLIC AND INDIVIDUALS.

The message to the sheriff was to the effect that he wanted no autopsy held on his remains, as his death would be caused by morphine; that he wanted his body turned over to his wife, and desired that no priest or preacher might be allowed to say a word of any kind over his grave. "Also that his gun, pistol, ammunition and $31.50 be given to W. D. Fenton, his counsel."

His message to the public was as follows: "I want the public to understand that I do not take my life through fear of death, because I am not afraid to die. I am not guilty of the crime with which I am charged, but circumstances have so prevented me from exonerating myself. I do not take my own life because I murdered Mrs. Petch, for I am innocent. I want to die in this manner because I don't want my children to go through the world hampered with the disgrace of their father having been hanged."

His message to his wife was: "Take charge of my body, and bury it beside one little babe who died within the year. I wish all the love you ever enter tained for me to be given to the children, and do not care if you marry again, and you like you can sell the property and go elsewhere."

The message to W. D. Fenton was in relation to his guns and pistols, and the publication of a poem.

ROGERS' STATEMENT OF THE SUICIDE.

Rogers says that Smith talked in his cell from 8:30 P. M. to 10 o'clock, when both fell asleep. He says he was awakened about 11:30 o'clock by hearing loud breathing and a gurgling sound coming from Smith's side of the cell. He became alarmed and shouted for the jailer, who aroused the sheriff. The latter sent for Dr. Littlefield, who labored with Smith, but without avail. He never spoke after his last words with Rogers and died at 8:30 A. M. Sunday.

Smith was in good spirits until Wednesday night, when he became much depressed. Rogers claims to have had fifty conversations with Smith in relation to the killing, but defendant strictly protested his innocence always, and said the shooting was done by Joe Petch and the public would find it out some day.

The Coroner's Inquest.

J. N. Hurley, justice of the peace, and acting coroner, impanelled the following jury on the Smith case: P. P. Gates, M. Kelly, F. O'Connor, William Townsend, Joseph Hoberg and Alonzo Brown.

The first witness was Dr. H. L. Littlefield, who was sworn and testified: Called to see deceased Sunday at 1 o'clock A. M., in the county jail at Lafayette, Yamhill county; from appearance judged that deceased had taken morphine; administered antidotes and stimulants; sent for Dr. Calbreath and used every means to counteract the morphine, but the efforts were fruitless.

Witness was corroborated by Dr. Calbreath.

Sheriff E. B. Collard testified to being aroused by the jailer, who informed him that Smith had attempted suicide, found latter in a dead faint; sent for medical assistance; identified dead man as coat as one he had worn during his imprisonment, and even [illegible] prisoner's in jail, and needles and thread, supplied them, saw stitching in lappel of coat, but never noticed it particularly until to-day.

W. D. FENTON'S TESTIMONY.

W. D. Fenton, the attorney for Smith, was sworn and said: Was attorney for deceased, [illegible] after the verdict was rendered last [illegible] Smith said to me: "I understood you to say that there is an appeal." I told him "yes," that he had had a fair trial, but that the court had given correct legal instructions as far as asked for; that the judge gave such instructions as precluded the probability of a reversal of judgment. He then asked if he could see his children, and I told him yes, that the little girl and his wife were in the sheriff's office. He asked when sentence would be pronounced. I told him Tuesday, at 11 A. M. He was in the sheriff's office fifteen minutes when I went in to tell him to return to his cell. He had his children in his arms and returning silently with them. He wanted to prolong the interview by pretending that his pipe was lost, and he seemed very unwilling to leave the children. I finally induced the children to leave him, they kissed him goodby and I went out. His wife followed and went with the little one, she was going on her way she said to N— [illegible] on business, and agreed to leave the children with me. I left the house this morning [Sunday]. I heard the news of Smith's suicide and didn't know about it on the street and she burst into tears and was overcome at the tidings.

SMITH'S WISHES MADE KNOWN.

Smith told me if the jury disagreed in his case, that he did not believe he could stand the confinement until spring. He said he could not stand up under it, but he never intimated that he would poison himself. This conversation took place some days before the trial. Having heard that he had poison on him when arrested, I asked him if it was true; he said it was, but that the sheriff had taken it from him. I felt apprehensive that he would commit suicide if he got a chance, as he was a proud spirited man and did not want the odium of his act to attach to his children. He made no confession of any kind or nature whatever, but protested his innocence to the last. The poem he requested me to publish was written June 3, 1883, and is entitled "Ups and Downs." It covers nine pages of letter paper and is descriptive of his trouble with the Petch family, and shows how hard is the lot of the poor when oppressed by the rich.

THE DOCUMENTS DESTROYED.

He told Rogers that he wanted this poem published after his death and copies of it sent to his relatives east. Smith regarded it as of much literary merit. It is with other poems and manuscript and destroyed the night poem was found on Smith when arrested, and is addressed to the Truth Seeker. The other documents were ideas of his in regard to the line of dergase. His message to his wife was queer to me, and, among other things he said never to allow any persons to whip his children and never to let them know that he wanted to be buried in a plain coffin and no extra clothing beyond what he had on when tried, no extra expense was to be indulged in for burial, because the little property held by her was needed for the children.

I had no idea he would commit suicide last night or until after the sentence was given. I warn the jailer to carefully guard him. His conduct at the last meeting with his children convinced me that he never expected to see them again.

TESTIMONY OF SMITH'S CELL MATE.

Wm. Rogers, the cell mate of Smith, testified that the deceased had hinted at suicide often, repeatedly asked me how much morphine was necessary to kill; I told him a teaspoonful. Thursday morning Smith asked me if the sheriff had taken away his coat; I told him no. McCain had said the night before that the jury should examine the coat. I asked Smith why he was so afraid about the coat; he said there was something in it that he did not want the sheriff to get hold of. I told him to rest easy, as the coat hung on the wall; he went over into the corridor as soon as the cell door was opened, and took the coat when he re-entered his cell and he remained there for fifteen minutes. I was unable while in there to make out what I supposed was the morphine from where it was secreted in the collar of his coat for eleven months and hid it in his cell. Smith had a bottle of paint, filler and a bottle of peppermint in his cell, which had been taken from the cabins, supposed he put the poison in one of these bottles and drank it; he said to me just before I fell asleep that he didn't know if he wasn't to die there would be an inquest, and he wanted the public to understand that no one was to blame for the poison but himself; that people would think his wife had a hand in it, but she was to be exonerated from any connection with it; he further told me that his conscience was clear and with that a stain of murder on it; he asked: "Suppose a man was to come and rob you and destroy your property, would it not be justifiable to kill him?" I said "Yes."

VERDICT OF THE JURY—NOTES.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict that George W. Smith came to his death by poison, administered by himself, of morphine, administered by himself with suicidal intent, and that the poison was concealed in the collar of a coat worn by him.

Rogers was awaiting trial for all grand robbery. He is an ex-convict. He was interviewed by THE OREGONIAN reporter, in his history and [illegible] ministers by [illegible] in the trial, in his [illegible] Sheriff Collard, while [illegible] of Smith in regard to a communication [illegible] and [illegible] but that he made a confession. Mrs. Smith was dressed in half mourning, and did not make any display of grief.

The body was placed in a plain coffin, with handles, and taken to the cemetery five miles north of Yamhill, where it was buried between the two children, aged 17 years and Nellie, aged 9 according to his belief.

Smith deeded all his property to his wife a few days ago. She had begun proceedings for divorce from Smith while he was a fugitive, but it is thought it was begun to throw the detectives off the track and help Smith escape.

Smith, in addition to having some good qualities, was a very industrious man. He attended a school in the start, for when first arrested a ball of wax was taken from him. He was 50 years of age, a native of Kalamazoo, Michigan, where his brother is a prominent man. Deceased was at one time a dairy man in Kansas. He leaves two daughters by a former wife—Millie Smith, graduate of the high school of Pleasant, Michigan, and the other married—Mrs. Minnie Worell, of Osage City, Kansas.

Professor Hendee came into THE OREGONIAN office yesterday to show us a suit of buckskin which the has the tailor 81 First street and made him a present. Professor Hend was highly pleased and wanted Marbeth to get full credit for the work done.

"DR. WILSON OF PORTLAND."

Full Particulars of the Successful Confidence Game Recently Played Upon the Above Named Physician—Capture of the Bunko Men.

The following is taken from the New York Commercial Advertiser of September 22. It seems quite improbable that the Wilson alluded to is Dr. R. B. Wilson of this city, as was stated in a dispatch from New York:

Dr. Wilson of Portland, Oregon, is spending the summer in this city. He is a gentleman of means and came to New York armed with a letter of credit on Drexel, Morgan & Co., the Wall street banking house. While sauntering in Sixth avenue, near Twenty-fourth street, yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, two well dressed men walked up to the doctor, and one of them slapping the doctor familiarly on the shoulder and with a pleasant smile on his face said: "Why, doctor, how do you do? When did you leave Oregon? My name is Forbes. Don't you know Forbes?" Dr. Wilson hesitated a moment, and the greetings of his new made acquaintance were renewed in such an earnest manner as to disarm all suspicion. Meanwhile Dr. Wilson imagined that he had really discovered an old friend from his far off home, and walked off arm in arm with the two men, having been in the meantime introduced to the companion of the stranger. Forbes then induced the doctor to accompany him to the east side of the town, pretending that he had drawn a prize in a lottery which he wished to cash. The doctor consented and the three soon arrived at a locality described by the doctor as Twenty-third street, near Fourth avenue, where the three entered a house. A proposition to play a little game was agreed to, and the party were soon enjoying themselves. Somehow the doctor's luck seemed to have deserted him, but the game was continued. First the doctor paid over his losses in cash, which amounted to only $—. Then he drew a check for $500 on a bank, and hoping to turn the tide decided he would venture a little deeper. The longer they played the heavier the doctor lost, and when he had lost $2000 additional it was decided to cease operations for a time. Just then the doctor produced a roll of blank drafts on Drexel, Morgan & Co., and filling in one to the amount of $2,000 took his departure.

The doctor's friends whom the doctor subsequently met, he confided his experience and the opinion was expressed that the doctor had been badly taken in. It was decided, however, to make efforts to capture the men and recover the money if possible. This morning Dr. Wilson repaired to the banking house of Drexel, Morgan & Co. and awaited the presentation of the check. Shortly before noon two men entered and advancing to the cashier's desk presented Dr. Wilson's draft. Detective Flanagan was called in and both men were taken in custody, but not until one of them had made a desperate effort to escape. Being conducted to the New street police station the men were placed in cells. They gave their names as Robert Price, aged 36, of Hoboken, N. J., and David Williams, aged 40, of St. Nicholas avenue and One Hundred and Sixteenth street. Both of the men were recognized as well known professional bunko steerers.

A GROWL FROM SALEM

SALEM, Sept. 31.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

We understand a mail from Portland is sent and received over the Northern Pacific railroad. The mail from Salem is sent via California, thus making Salem three days (and now the rains have commenced, four if not more days) further from New York and the whole east than Portland. Have we a representative of the postoffice department called postal agent or by any name you choose, resident in Oregon? And if we have, what is he for? We have a daily mail from all the world to Glendale, Douglas county, Oregon, and to Portland, Oregon, via the Northern Pacific railroad. Between these places, through the Willamette and Umpqua valleys, we have a daily mail except Sundays, when we have no mail. How much longer is this to continue? Can not postal agents, senators, representatives, one or all, remedy this?

SALEM.

Personal Property.

Seattle Post Intelligencer.

The mayor of Portland has been interviewed by a reporter of the Evening Telegram upon the subject of his now famous contract with Besser, alluded to in these columns yesterday. The mayor admits and justifies the contract in these words: "I do not think I have been dishonorable in any manner, shape or form, and I have nothing to be ashamed of." It is a strange state of mind which cannot perceive any culpability in a pre-election or any election contract which parcels out public office for coin, which discards all questions of capability and fitness on the part of applicants and makes office belonging to and supported by the public, mere handles to be bought and sold by contract. And it betokens a startling degree of moral obliquity on the part of a public officer that he should see in such transaction nothing dishonorable. If appointments to public and lucrative positions are to be made the subject of commerce, methods should be provided for open competition. They should be put up at auction and knocked down to the highest bidder. If an election to office is to carry with it the ownership, as private property, of the patronage attached to public office, and is to be liable to [illegible] to [illegible] providing for the transfer of the property. It has been heretofore, perhaps erroneously, supposed that an official wielding patronage was but an agent of the public from whom his office was derived, and that he theoretically at least that such patronage would be exercised not in private interest, but with due regard to the public good, to some extent with due regard to the quiet feature of the appointee and safety of public interests. Evidently, however, this view of patronage does not agree in any respect with that of Portland's mayor.

Cleveland's Chances.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The New York World is quietly cultivating the idea that Governor Cleveland will be a formidable candidate for the presidency in the next democratic national convention. That will depend a good deal on the result of the election in New York. Should it win the considerable falling off in the majority they had last year it will be a set-back, and if the [illegible] the strength of his popularity in the state and of [illegible] carrying it against him at the [illegible] that [illegible] If he were to receive a marked increase in the majority, his sovereign successes will be [illegible] to [illegible] other [illegible] of Mr. Randall or other strong candidates.

ALBANY NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

ALBANY, Oct. 1, 1883.

Mrs. O. C. Cherry is visiting friends in Salem.

It is rumored that work has again been commenced on the O. P. R. R.

Charles Crowder returned last week from an extended trip through the Sound country.

Mrs. Frank Paxton and family left last Saturday for their new home in Walla Walla, W. T.

E. Spinks has moved on to a farm near Harrisburg, and will become a granger for a few years.

Carl Lindeman, an employe in S. E. Young's store, is confined to his bed with typhoid fever.

All the flouring mills are now running on full time and a large amount of flour is daily ground out.

C. C. Cherry of the firm of Cherry & Parkes has been on an extended trip to Linn county for several days past.

Albany Engine Company No. 1's hose boys gave a very enjoyable dance at the depot last Friday evening, which was quite well attended.

C. C. Cherry has purchased the property adjoining his foundry, and as soon as a number of improvements are made will remove into it.

The band boys have in preparation an entertainment which will be given in the near future to assist in procuring instruments, music, etc.

Due credit was not given Mr. Putnam's family recently. Instead of 513 years it should have read nine children whose united ages are 654 years, an average of over 72 years. What family can beat it?

The first lecture for the benefit of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be delivered at the Y. M. C. A. hall next Friday evening. A large number of tickets have already been sold.

Yesterday evening about 6 o'clock it commenced raining and continued almost incessantly until this morning. A great deal of water fell, but it will have little effect upon the streams as it was quickly taken up by the dry ground.

Dr. J. L. Hill of this city recently received word that his band of horses in eastern Oregon was afflicted with Spanish fever or distemper, and that fifteen or twenty head, including his fine Arabian stallion had died. The loss will amount to over $2000.

While attending the state fair, McKnight Bros. of this county purchased of Jay Beach, of Lebanon, the two year old standard bred trotting stallion, Dun, paying therefor the sum of $800. This colt has a record of three minutes, the best in the state for two year olds.

Mr. James Dannals, of the firm of Dannals & Wolf, furniture dealers, has sold his interest in the firm to Messrs. Brink and Fisher, two young men who have been employed in the establishment for several years past. The new firm is composed of energetic young men who will make the business a success.

The Magnolia flouring mills came near being destroyed by fire last Friday morning. One of the elevators caught on fire from the friction of the grain belt and was not discovered until the elevator was wrapped in flames. Plenty of water being at hand the fire was extinguished before any serious damage was done.

One day last week while Mr. McCoug, a farmer living near town was driving down the street, a canned dog came running along, frightening the horses, which caused them to run away. Mr. McClung was thrown from the carriage, but not seriously injured. One broken axle was the only damage to the vehicle.

SALEM NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, Oct. 1.

E. C. Alexander, of your city, spent the Sabbath in Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Meyer are rejoicing over the arrival of a little girl at their home.

Splendid showers have been visiting us recently, and the atmosphere is once more clear.

Supreme court convened this morning, and a number of visiting attorneys are in attendance.

Lake county is the first on the list to send her assessment roll for 1883 to the secretary of state.

A. J. Smithson, of Albina, and Miss Nancy Hays of Jefferson were married in this city on Saturday last, Judge P. H. D'Arcy officiating.

F. A. Coggswell, Esq., of Lake view, is in the city, and with Mr. Nichols will apply to the supreme court for permission to practice in that state.

Prof. Horne, the so-called spiritualist, gave an entertainment at Reed's opera house last Saturday evening to a small and evidently non appreciative audience. As soon as he was arrested on a warrant sworn out by O. W. Fellenbrand, on the charge of falsely impersonating and his person and obtaining money under false pretenses, and was at once lodged in the calaboose. It will come up before Justice C. J. Y. for examination to-day.

VANCOUVER ITEMS.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.

Among the pioneers of Vancouver who go east on Tuesday with the Oregon company is Hon. S. D. Maxon.

On Friday the Clark county pioneers held a meeting. It was very enthusiastic and many speeches were made. The latest and most valued was made by the most aged pioneer of all—one of the first judges of Oregon—the Hon. Columbia Lancaster, who came to the coast and Oregon in 1847.

The fair has been a financial success—in fact a success from first to last. The annual address by Hon. A. A. Marsh, river L. S. and [illegible], at this place was an able and eloquent address. The display of all kinds of farm products was very fine for Clark county. The races were good and the attendance from Portland very large.

Referring to the advertisement of the Portland Water Company in THE OREGONIAN and STANDARD, giving result of the analyses made by Chemist J. C. [illegible] of the Willamette river water and the water of the Springs with which is proposed by the Crystal Springs Water Company to supply the cities of Portland, East Portland and Albina, it might be well for an interested public to know that the analysis was made of the Willamette river water at the time of the height of the summer rise (see printed report of Joint Committee of Councilmen and Citizens to Common Council, Sept. 14, 1872, page nine, last two lines). And the committee very properly and truthfully add: It is a question whether later in the season it would analyze so well. Every resident of Portland well knows that the snow water which fills the Willamette the season referred to, and the water after the rise are entirely different. Also eleven years ago the present sewerage of Portland and the numerous contaminating influences along the shores of the Willamette especially such as were referred to in a late issue of The News did not then exist. But the good citizens of Portland will not be deceived into the belief that they are now getting even as pure water as they did eleven years ago.

SOUTHERN OREGON RAILROAD NOTES.

From the Jacksonville Times.

LeFevre's right-of-way force is now at Gold Hill.

A gang of Chinese graders was this week set to work in the vicinity of Gold Hill.

Large numbers of Chinese are constantly arriving at the Siskiyous to engage in railroad work there.

The pay wagon runs regularly to the Siskiyous. Mr. Reed, the paymaster, paid all the hands off not long ago.

Boring is now progressing on both ends of the Ba[illegible] rock tunnel. At the large tunnel much headway has been made.

Hurlburt has finished the preliminary survey and the route that will be taken south of Dobson's location will soon be definitely known.

Two big blasts were touched off at Buck rock tunnel this week. Thirteen hundred pounds of powder were used in one instance and 900 in the other.

The track has reached Louse creek, where there will be a halt of several weeks, as a great deal of heavy trestlework is to be done. Freight will therefore not be landed at Grant's pass for some time to come.

Some of the graders have reached the lower field of White Bros. of Rock Point, which is evidence that railroad work is being pushed rapidly forward, although a great deal of grading is yet to be done north of there.

Work is progressing rapidly on the Rogue river bridge, the piers being completed and in readiness for the span. It will not be many weeks before the structure is finished. There is considerable trestle work in that vicinity, however, which will require some time longer.

The commissioners appointed to receive twenty miles more of the O. & C. R. R. extension having completed their labors, a large area of government land has again been withdrawn from the market, the line extending to the township in which Jacksonville is situated. Register Benjamin of the Roseburg land office has forwarded us definite information concerning the withdrawal, but the letter was mislaid and has not come to hand as yet.

A Common Sense View of the Heartless "Mockery of the Tomb."

THE PARADE OF MOURNING

How Some Poor People Make Themselves Poorer by Holding Expensive Funeral Over Departed Kinsmen.

Good Words, for October

The conventionalities of life are in nothing more strongly marked than in their association with death. The despotism of fashion in this regard prevades all classes of the community, but is, perhaps, more strikingly manifested in the middle ranks of society than in either of its extremes. The members of the upper stratum as a rule are moderate in their display of mourning comparatively speaking, for when the great ones of earth pass away (in the common sense of wealth conferring greatness, as it is erroneously supposed to do) there might be an excuse for pageantry and the indulgence of ostentatious obsequies as compatible with the mode of existence governing the social circle to which the defunct belonged. But this warranty is not by any means taken advantage of, while it very often happens that the last wishes of the deceased stipulate for the simplest form of funeral and the injunction is invariably observed.

Concerning the poorer classes it would be idle to speculate upon what their disposition in the matter may be, for in their case the want of means is an insurmountable obstacle to the gratification of any desire if it exists, for lavish display in testimony of the worth of a loved and honored friend or relative lost forever to their earthly affection. Doubtless in many cases the humblest and most indigent in life would be only too glad to make a sacrifice (which in itself would be a source of gratification) to the memory of a beloved father or mother, and this would be done with the purest motives, and in the best sense of self-abnegation, but all such wishes and yearnings must succumb to the pressure of necessity, and thus the force of circumstances asserts its power and saves the world an exhibition of the useless and pitiful parade of mourning.

The extravagance of pageantry in funeral display is most noticeable in the class with whom money is abundant and fashion an idol, which lives upon the circumference of that exclusive circle called "Society," simulating its characteristics at a distance, and even hoping to gain admittance to its sacred precincts through the agency of the proverbial golden key. But notwithstanding the social veneer with which this portion of the community clothes itself there are certain natural qualities which it possesses which make themselves manifest, and distinguish it from any other and the love of display and ostentation ceremonial in which the possession of wealth enables it to indulge is one of the most notable features.

The period of mourning therefore (admitting as it does of all the pomp and circumstance which fashion encourages sorrow would seem to sanctify, and religion tolerates) affords this far-reaching middle-class of society the opportunity of which it seldom fails to avail itself. It is in connection with the upper opulent and least cultured members of the community here indicated that the spectacle of a "splendid funeral" so often arouses in the thoughtful observer feelings of pitiful contempt for the vanity and lust of pride which is too often displayed—especially when it is done more in the interests of the living than of the dead.

Plumes carried by walking servitors in front of the cortege, plumes decorating horses' heads and waving above the catafalque like open hearse, embroidered mourning cloths and sable housings hanging about the harness of animals dragging mourning coaches and drivers with flushed faces and rubicund noses wearing hats swathed in huge folds of crape and individuals walking at either side of the remains carrying batons with gilded mouldings wearing scarfs of black, flowing hat-bands, gloves and all the insignia of woe who do not feel a single pang in their hearts (how can they, being hired for the occasion?) and who make a desperate and often vain attempt to look solemn as befits the serious ceremony. Then in conjunction with this theatrical procession of mutes there is a long succession of mourning coaches, and with a slow stately pace the pageant passes through the thronged streets of the city in the full glare of day attracting crowds of sight-seers who speculate as to what mighty personage is about to be interred—and is the grand object of the parade has been ... And who may this mighty personage have been whom pomp and vanity is thus escorting to that six feet of the meanest earth which is all that he can own for evermore? Possibly he was a man devoid of every characteristic which could have ennobled him among his fellow men. Probably he had nothing to recommend him but his wealth even among the circle in which he moved. For all that gaping crowd may know which wastes the grim procession pass upon that final journey the very wealth which he accumulated may have been wrung from the wasted energies of those whom misfortune placed within his merciless power, and which his own craft had again converted into a weapon which enabled him to carry on the war upon the weak and helpless. And yet this mockery of woe this burlesque of sorrow, is indulged in at his death and the last scene of all becomes as it were an epilogue of sham to a life drama in which many a moral tragedy has been committed!

> Rattle his bones over the stones
> He's only a pauper whom nobody owns

Here is the reverse of the picture. Can any satire be conceived which more completely demonstrates the folly and insincerity of extravagant funeral show than the contrast afforded by the poet's lines? The pauper, whose remains are treated with such cold and brutal disdain may have been the victim of the rich man whose obsequies are being celebrated, and who in his nature may have been as superior to him as virtue is to vice, or truth to falsehood for all the posthumous honors that are given him. The world is teeming with such contrasts and fate is eternally spinning forth such satires.

When a truly great man dies, a man who has made himself famous in his country's cause or in the welfare of humanity in general it is only right and proper that the occasion of interment should be observed with all the rites and ceremonies which a life of eminence has earned. In this regard nations honor themselves as well as the deceased, and a national tribute becomes a national satisfaction. When a mighty general shuffles off this mortal coil as in the case of Wellington there is every reason to acknowledge the services he rendered to the state upon a hundred fields by all the splendor and martial display of a soldier's funeral executed upon a scale of the amplest magnitude. Herein excess becomes almost impossible. In the first place the hero who won a dukedom with his sword expressly left his "body to the nation." In their turn the queen and people whom he served so well remembered the debt of gratitude they owed and were conscious of the greatness of the empire which he saved from peril in the hour of extremest danger, and testified their admiration of his worth by one of the grandest spectacles that the world has ever seen.

And thus with others—statesmen philanthropists, scientists—those who contribute to the happiness of humanity and by their gifts and acquirements contrive to leave the world in a better condition than they found it—for all that noble band no available can be justly advanced in derogation of the fullest recognition of their merits by the best means left to their admirers of testifying at once their respect and veneration. But statesmen philanthropists and their congeners are usually beings whose minds are too lofty to attach much value or importance to any kind of mortuary celebration, and the desire so often expressed as to the avoidance of futile and unnecessary pomp is not the least dignified honorable and devout phase of their exalted feelings. Palmerston, Russel, Peabody and Beaconsfield were men who left their impress upon history, and yet with the exception of the first-named premier they all sank into oblivion of the tomb with the least possible display of ostentation, consistent with the grand positions they occupied during their illustrious existence, and even in the case of the great liberal leader whose exception has been noted the desire for private and simple obsequies was over ruled by the sense of sovereign and national affection and his ashes were added to the hallowed treasures of mortality of which the sacred fane of Westminster is the unequalled casket simply as a matter of public justice to the memory of one who had loved his country well and served it faithfully.

Every nation indeed every race has its own peculiar notions respecting ceremonial upon these mournful occasions. The Gaelic—in fact all the Latins—are perhaps the most demonstrative. Custom with them is a deeply rooted sentiment—a natural characteristic which may be regarded as ineradicable. In France, orations over the open graves are delivered by friends and compatriots of the deceased which are designed to stir to their profoundest depths the emotions of the throngs who crowd around the bier, and who "assist" upon such occasions from motives which may not always spring from affectionate remembrance so much as from the dictates of fashion. But however that may be, there is always an exhibition of fervor and sorrow, and when the rites are over, whether religious or simply secular, the mourners retire from the scene with a sense of satisfaction at [illegible] having fulfilled what they conceived to be a duty.

Ireland and Scotland have also their own individual methods of honoring the dead. In the former country the custom of the "wake" has been handed down from immemorial times, and though there is much in the manner of its conduct at variance with modern notions of propriety and certain elements which, with honor and advantage could be eliminated from the usual proceedings yet it possesses the character of antiquity and a weird sentiment of the poetic which is generally found associated with superstitious imagination. The wail and lamentation of the keener worked up to a frenzy of stimulated woe is intended as the expression of real sorrow with which the bereaved ones are stricken down, and however grotesque such a performance may appear to the cultivated mind still it represents nothing but sincerity to the untutored imagination of an impulsive peasantry.

And in like manner the clansmen in the highlands of Scotland offer a wild, striking picturesque appearance—especially in the burial of a chieftain—as has been depicted with such force of delineation in the pages of Sir Walter Scott. The funeral dirges chanted while torches blaze around the bier and the old seer of the Gael wraps himself up in his plaid and is supposed to be lost in communion with the beings of the spirit world. But in the lowlands where the principles of Presbyterianism prevail the simplest and most unostentatious forms of religious observance is that which is generally favored.

And this simplicity ought to be the general rule.

Mourning if it means anything is the visible expression of grief for a departed friend or relative and if that expression be carried beyond the limits of reasonable propriety it becomes a mockery of one of the most sacred sentiments that can animate the human heart. And this parade of mourning is revealed in other ways besides an extravagant processional show through the public streets. During the last few years it has become the fashion for civilians to ape the military style and wear a deep black band of crape upon the arm in order to make the badge of mourning all the more conspicuous. In a sense never intended by Shakespeare those who indulge in such a silly weakness would appear indeed to wear their hearts upon their sleeves for it is almost certain there is as much sincere sorrow possessing it in the one place as in the other. Why the modest and all-sufficient hat band should be discarded in favor of the new arrangement there is scarcely any means of knowing, other than the natural assumption that fashion has prescribed and if this theory be admitted away at once with the truth and honesty of the appearance for it is not a badge of mourning but of vanity.

The sorrow which keeps its secret to himself is after all the most genuine and sincere. It is a feeling which belongs to and concerns only the individual possessing it, and when men are animated with the best and purest motives they do not usually obtrude their grief upon public notice by wearing an advertisement of woe. Of course it does not follow that this should always be the case for mental weakness (which has nothing whatever to do with the affections) reveals itself in countless ways, and enthusiasts are common enough nowadays who wear ribbons and badges in galore and who seem to be particularly satisfied with themselves and the r[illegible] which occasion no greater harm than the raising of a smile upon the features of the judicious. But that which may be tolerated, or even condoned in the case of persons who carry their ideas upon any given theme of social reformation to an extreme point can scarcely be excused in a matter so solemn as our mode of revering the memory of our beloved departed. To reduce such a subject to such a level is to deprive it of almost every commendable element.

A colored boy from Mexico 15 years of age employed on board of the steamship City of Puebla now in this port had a wonderful escape from a large shark at Vera Cruz. The boy could not speak English but Commodore Deal the commander of the steamship who had been an eye witness told the story yesterday. He said: "We were lying outside of the harbor at Vera Cruz loading as we were afraid of getting the yellow fever if we went into the harbor and this boy Pedro was cleaning out a boat which was lying alongside the vessel. He was leaning over washing off one of the seats when a shark's jaws appeared above the surface and made a snap for the darkey. But Pedro was warned just in time and went over oar on the opposite side of the boat at the same moment as the shark landed in the boat. The shark floundered around in the boat until he got his head over the gunwale and then went overboard before we could get a chance to harpoon him. The little darkey almost white with fright lost no time after the shark went over but scrambled into the boat and came on deck. We couldn't get that boy to wash that boat after that." Chief Engineer Bl[illegible] the chief steward and other officers of the vessel gave a similar account of this wonderful [illegible].—New York Tribune

Last Saturday a man by the name of Mitchell employed by Mr Sauve at his ranch about five miles from this place was bitten by a tarantula. Mr Mitchell was engaged in pitching hay into a wagon at the time and it is supposed that he took the tarantula off the ground in a forkful of hay and when he raised the hay over his head for the purpose of pitching it into the wagon the tarantula fell off the hay into the inside of his shirt which was unbuttoned in the front at the time. Mr Mitchell felt something crawling on the inside of his shirt but before he could get his hand in to find out what it was the tarantula had bitten him twice on the left side, the bites being about six inches apart. Mitchell immediately stripped off his shirt and succeeded in killing the dangerous intruder without being nipped again. In less than fifteen seconds from the time he was bitten his whole side turned as black as a piece of coal and he was unable to walk. His companions, who were working with him at the time carried him to the house and applied brandy as a restorative, internally and externally, and succeeded in saving the man's life.—*Calaveras (Cal.) Death of the Girl with the Alleged Miraculous Wounds.

Pall Mall Gazette

The death is announced of Louise Lateau the stigmatica of Bois d'Haine. This singular being was born on the 30th of January, 1850. She made her first communion at the age of 11 years and began to earn her living as a seamstress at the age of 15. During the cholera visitation in 1866 she exhibited much devotion in attending to the wants of the stricken. In 1867 she was attacked by a lingering malady and received the last sacrament. She was however cured (miraculously, said her friends) but only for a short time. Early in 1868 she was said to have first experienced pain in the locality of the stigmata and she again received the last sacrament. It is alleged, nevertheless that she foretold her recovery and on April 21 she appeared completely restored to health.

The first outward indication of the stigmata is said to have taken place on the 24th of April 1868 when a wound in the side was visible which healed the next day. On the 1st of May blood was reported to have issued from the upper surface of her feet as well as from her side and she then confided the matter to M le Cure. Seven days later the stigmata of the hands added themselves to the others and M le Cure advised her to apply to the physician of Fayt, who attempted to cure her. In the course of 1868 several evidences of ecstacy are said to have occurred and on September 25 1868 the crown of thorns first appeared.

After this she ceased to sleep. Her alleged complete abstinence from nourishment began on March 30, 1871 and the wound on the shoulder appeared in the following April. The case attracted great attention at the hands of medical men physiologists and psychologists and numerous pamphlets appeared on the subject. Difficulties were interposed in the way of a thorough sifting of the case but it was pronounced a gross imposture by many who had an opportunity of investigating it.

Mr Tilden has a yacht and a span of Kentucky thoroughbreds dumbbells and Indian clubs until you can't rest and has ordered half a dozen shirts with blue horseshoe pictures on them. When anybody disputes a proposition he has made he pulls out a roll of bills quietly remarks "Money talks—put up or shut up" and then expectorates over his shoulder and walks off on his ear. It is reported that Mr Tilden will come into the possession of a large property on his twenty first birthday.

The area of Montana is approximately estimated at 146,000 square miles. Of this area somewhere about two fifths, or 58,400 square miles are now covered by Indian reservations. The commissioner of Indian affairs estimates the whole number of Indians in the United States at 246,932. Of this number Montana is credited with 18,705 or a fraction less than one in fourteen of the entire Indian population of the whole country.

Professor Park of Andover, has a very impressive manner in the pulpit. When he prayed the other day for those of the congregation present who might be "appointed soon to die" the attention of the most careful listener was arrested, and a deep sense of the dreadful uncertainty of life impressed upon all present.

GIVEN UP BY DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr Godfrey is up and at work and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well a-day! That's remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY Oct. 1

The new month opened with rain and in this respect is similar to last year. But there is a much larger general trade doing than at the same time last year although produce is in lessened receipt.

Joseph Nimmo Jr of the bureau of statistics will soon issue his annual report. In it he puts forth as his opinion that the Southern Pacific must carry considerable wheat to Liverpool via New Orleans. His opinion is seconded by certain trade papers of New York but there remains yet one on this coast to express similar views before making his report he solicited and obtained the general opinion of California shippers which evidently had no effect on his mind. The California papers are taking up the subject and by close figuring succeed very well to show that the ocean route must continue to be the cheapest. From San Francisco to Liverpool the distance by sea is 15,794 miles and the average rate of ocean charges has been 32.5 cents per bushel during the past three years. This is only 38 100 of one mill per ton of 2000 pounds per mile whereas the current rate by rail from Chicago to New York 916 miles is 15 cents per bushel or 5⅛ mills per ton per mile. The average ocean rate from New York to Liverpool has been 9 12 100 cents per bushel by steamer for the last three years the distance being 3543 miles. This is at the rate of 67 100 of a mill per ton per mile. It will thus be seen that the Southern Pacific whose rail mileage is greater than that from Chicago, can hope for a very small part of the grain-carrying trade.

The Minneapolis Miller of September 29 says: Low water and the consequent lack of power continues to figure as the leading feature of the milling business in this city. The situation is no better than it was a week ago in this respect, the flour production being materially reduced from what it would otherwise be in consequence. On Wednesday there were twenty one out of the twenty two custom mills in the city in operation and although there was a manifest desire on the part of the owners to run to full capacity few were turning out more than two thirds of their usual quota of flour. The production for the week will average about 14,500 barrels per day against 10,600 barrels a week ago. The majority of millers and flour men report some improvement in the flour trade and in the light of a shortage of water power not only here but at other points working a curtailment of our production a better demand and the hardening of prices are considered probable. Higher prices for wheat are also not without an influence in the same direction.

FREIGHTS—The Br wooden ship Grasmere 1098 tons will load wheat on owner's account. Her owners evidently believe there is a better future for the grain trade. The wooden ship Reaper 1485 tons has been taken by Caesar & Co for grain loading. Rate and terms are held private but common report gives it as something less than 52s 6d, U.K. Our disengaged list is reduced to 12,985 tons all wood. Of this 1417 is not in the market for charter, 919 is not available or will not be for a month and 1317 is seeking a sale. Thus the amount available for wheat is actually reduced to 8693 tons. Negotiations are said to be pending for another large vessel. The market presents no new features of interest.

Overland freights east bound are increasing and for Saturday included 66 tcs 400 cs 50 hf lard 43 cs meats 50 kgs 35 cs syrup 100 cs ax grease 257 sks seed.

To-night's steamer has a light freight and includes the first shipment of Puget sound hops this season.

WHEAT—A very quiet market rules and no offerings were reported to-day. For round lots of good shipping exporters continue to offer $1 80@1 87½ for eastern and valley. A light business is still reported in the interior. Receipts do not materially improve. The English market appears to be in better tone and holders of cargoes consider their position strengthened. Liverpool spot shows a firmer tone. Farmers deliveries are large being 7,000 qrs last week.

FLOUR—The burning of the Standard mills at Walla Walla is an unfortunate thing at this time. It reduces the production of the upper country about 200 barrels per day. The local market is quiet and unchanged.

MILLSTUFFS—Values firm with stocks fair. Ground barley is held at $ [illegible] per ton.

OATS—Market firm with 5[illegible] bid for choice feed.

POTATOES—Worth 60c for Oregon at this rate offerings do not decrease and sales are slow.

HOPS—None offering here as yet but receipts of valley are expected before the week closes. Private advices claim a better feeling exists abroad and at the east but the San Francisco market drags.

APPLES—Receipts large and market weak at $1 @ 1 25.

PROVISIONS—Stocks light with values firm. East run lard is being received overland.

POULTRY—Chickens rather better to-day but market has a weak tone. Quote $3@[illegible]. Turkeys sold at [illegible] but there is little or no demand as yet.

EGGS—Scarce and firm at 35.

SHIPPING NOTES

The Queen of the Pacific sails to-night.

The State of California will be due to morrow.

The Oregon will probably make one more trip to this port and then go on the Sound route.

The Corsica came up to Couch's wharf to-day.

The St Lucie is at the foot of Taylor street.

The New Zealand and Australian mails reached San Francisco Sunday night.

The Chilean bark Oregon reported wrecked is doubtless the old bark Oregon built in New York in 1848 and long employed on this coast. Ones or more properly Hagah island is one of the Loyalty group in lat 20 4 south.

The G D Bryant was taken over to the east side to-day.

The Queen of the Pacific made remarkable time on the run from Port Townsend to San Francisco and she is capable of yet greater speed. The run from dock to dock was made in 62 hours and 50 minutes. The next best run was by the Mexico in about 60 hours. The Queen's time beats that of the Dakota from Victoria, which is three hours nearer San Francisco than is Port Townsend.

Captain Perkins of the Mt. Washington has had no intimation that he is to take the Tillie Starbuck but our authority is so good that we are compelled to believe the transfer will be made. Capt. Perkins is a cousin of ex-Gov Perkins of California.

The steamers Coptic and Oceanic will doubtless be retained in the China trade as the Belgic and Arabic have been sold at Liverpool to enter other employ. This is expected to keep the larger steamers in the Pacific. The Coptic recently made the run from Hong Kong to San Francisco in 21 days lowering the previous record.

The Br bk Earl of Elgin from Port Blakeley with lumber was towed into Shanghai September 8 waterlogged.

One-fourth of the tern Courser has been sold for $5,000.

The Columbia reached San Francisco at noon to-day.

The Idaho leaves San Francisco to-morrow for Astoria, where she will receive her Alaskan freight.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt, removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

Swift's Specific has been the means of bringing health and happiness to thousands who were pronounced incurable of Blood and Skin Diseases.

HEAR THE WITNESSES!

Saved from a Horrible Death.

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars in treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. I suffered excruciating pain and all my best friends advised me that the only relief was [illegible] approaching rapidly. I caught at S. S. S. like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores began to discharge freely and the inflammation to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles. THERE IS NOT A SYMPTOM OF THE DISEASE REMAINING, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in weight and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many with success. I believe that S. S. S. has saved me from a horrible death. G. H. SMILEY, Quincy, Ill.

I am sure that Swift's Specific saved my life. I was terribly poisoned with Malaria, and was given up to die. Swift's Specific relieved me promptly and entirely. I think it is the great remedy of the age. C. O. SPENCER, Sup't Gas Works, Boise, Ida.

DID SHE DIE?

"No.

She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years.

"The doctors doing her no good.

And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.

Indeed! Indeed!

How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A DAUGHTER'S MISERY.

Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery

From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and nervous debility.

Under the care of the best physicians

Who gave her disease various names

But no relief.

And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it. THE PARENTS.

FATHER IS GETTING WELL.

My daughter says—

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

And we are so glad that he used your bitters. A LADY OF UTICA, N. Y.

DR. CHEEVER'S ELECTRIC BELT or Regenerator is made expressly for the cure of derangement of the generative organs. Whenever any debility of the generative organs occurs from whatever cause, the continuous stream of ELECTRICITY permeating through the parts must restore them to healthy action. There is no mistake about this instrument. Years of use have tested it, and thousands of cures are testified to. Weakness from Indiscretion, Incapacity, Lack of Vigor, Sterility—in fact, any trouble of these organs is cured. Do not confound this with electric belts advertised to cure all ills from head to toe. This is for the ONE specific purpose. For circulars giving full information, address CHEEVER ELECTRIC BELT CO., 103 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.
